Von Ribbentrop To Visit Mussolini, Ciano Before Returning Home

Catholic Quarters Suspect Motives Of Attache's Journey To Rome

ROME, March 11—For a conference which may prove of great importance to German-Vatican relations, Pope Pius XII today received German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop in audience and conversed with him for 65 minutes.

Earlier the German diplomat conferred for half an hour with King Victor Emanuel at the Quirinal palace.

There was no immediate announcement of the trend of the talk between His Holiness and Von Ribbentrop, but advance predictions had indicated that it might be aimed at a reconciliation between Germany and the Holy See. Pope Pius received Von Ribbentrop in the Vatican library. After the audience, Von Ribbentrop emerged smiling broadly and went to call on Cardinal Maglione, the papal secretary of state.

Summary Provided
While Von Ribbentrop continued his consultations, informed quarters gave this summary of the present situation:

Italy, while faithfully living up to her alliance with Germany, will continue her policy of non-belligerence, relying on Premier Mussolini's "serene and realistic policies to put a brake on precipitation of events."

Italy's controversy with England is moving toward an honorable compromise, it was said.

Italo-American relations continue to be excellent, and Italo-Russian ones are tending to improve.

Ribbentrop was accompanied by eight aides when he went to the Vatican for the audience, including Dr. Alfred Ciodius, ace German economic negotiator. All were in uniform.

BRITAIN REJECTED MEDIATOR'S ROLE, AVERS SPOKESMAN

LONDON, March 11—The British government revealed officially today that it refused last month to transmit Russian peace proposals to Finland on grounds that Moscow's terms were too severe.

The announcement said the Russian government on February 22 asked Britain to transmit peace terms to Finland but that the British government declined to do so since the terms "appeared to leave Finland in a hopeless plight."

FARLEY TICKET WILL BE FILED FOR OHIO VOTE

By Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen

WASHINGTON, March 11—Keep your eye on Jim Farley in the turbulent Democratic presidential primary in Ohio.

He's not saying anything about it, but at the last minute (March 14) he's going to file a "Roosevelt slate" of his own.

The regular state Democratic organization has entered a ticket of third-term delegates headed by Chairman Charles Sawyer. Farley's slate nominally will also be for the President, but it will take orders from Jim and not from the White House. In other words, it will be anti-third term.

Farley's Ohio maneuver is one of the most significant political developments in months. It means that he has definitely cast his lot with the anti-third term faction.

Publicly, Jim has ducked all questions on this issue. In entering the Ohio melee with a slate of his own, in direct opposition to a state organization which acted on (Continued on Page Eight)

STEPHEN YOUNG TO RUN FOR POST IN CONGRESS

COLUMBUS, March 11—Another Democrat eliminated himself today as a potential candidate for the U. S. senate seat of Vic Donahy when Former Congressman Stephen M. Young, Cleveland, filed as a candidate for congressman-at-large.

Young filed 5000 signatures from 65 counties with the secretary of state and declared his faith in the Roosevelt program and the foreign policies of Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

"The future of American youth," said Young "must be on top of American soil, not underneath European dirt. I feel as congressman-at-large, a real opportunity for service will be afforded in tackling the problem of jobless youth."

GEN. JOHNSON IN HOSPITAL

NEW DEAL CHIEF SAYS HE WOULD SUPPORT FARLEY

President, However, Doesn't Expect Convention To Nominate Big Jim

SOME QUESTIONS AIRED

Executive Not Certain That His Postmaster General Qualified For Job

WASHINGTON, March 11—President Roosevelt told callers last week that he believed Postmaster General James A. Farley lacked the necessary qualifications for the presidency, but that he would support him if the convention nominated him, it was learned today.

The President, however, does not believe Farley will be nominated either for the presidency or the vice-presidency.

Mr. Roosevelt during the week talked quite freely about Farley. The postmaster general's name has been on the capital's tongue since the publication last Monday of an article by Ernest K. Lindley, Roosevelt biographer, quoting the President as saying he opposed the nomination of Farley for the vice-presidency because of his Catholic faith.

Since that publication, the President has stressed to visitors his personal friendship for Farley and spoken gratefully of Farley's great loyalty to him. But he has repeated earlier observations that he does not believe Farley is qualified to be president.

37 NAZIS REACH SAFETY AFTER SCUTTLING SHIP

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic, March 11—Thirty-seven survivors of the 5,537-ton German freighter Hannover, scuttled in Moana Channel when intercepted by French and British warships, were questioned by Dominican police today and then released.

At the German legation, it was said that the Hannover had been intercepted 40 miles off the Dominican coast by a French cruiser believed to be the Jeanne D'Arc and a British destroyer.

The captain and 54 other members of the crew, at first reported lost, are now believed to have been picked up by the French or British warship.

The Hannover's scuttling occurred well within the 300-mile "safety belt" established by the 21 Pan-American nations to protect their neutrality.

Two Army Men Killed As Plane Falls in Fog

DENVER, March 11—Two army pilots stationed at Lowry Field in Denver were killed in a plane crash in Kansas last night, it was reported today by officials at Lowry Field.

The pilot's names were revealed to be Maj. Devereux M. Meyers, a native Virginian, and Corp. Maurice M. Melvin, of Olivet, Mich.

Capt. Leo Dawson, public relations officer at Lowry Field, said the two men were returning from a training flight to California and had left the airport at Albuquerque at 4 p. m. yesterday. They crashed in a fog near Sharon Springs, Kan.

Capt. Dawson said that Sheriff Orville Walker of Sharon Springs reported the crash to officials at Lowry Field late last night and said the plane burst into flames. One of the bodies of the men was thrown clear of the wreckage.

The plane crashed on the gulched farm of Dolph Simpson, four miles southwest of Sharon Springs.

CLYDE BRINKER TO ENTER RACE FOR TREASURER

With only a few days remaining for candidates to file their nominating petitions, the Pickaway County political pot was stirred up again Monday when Clyde Brinker, prominent Ashville businessman, announced that he would be a candidate for the Republican nomination for county treasurer.

Mr. Brinker obtained his petitions Saturday night from the board of elections and immediately placed them in circulation. He is running, it is reported, with the full support of the county Republican organization.

Since Friday is the last day for candidates to fill petitions, a rush is expected during the next few days since many persons who are intending to run for office have not yet submitted their petitions to the election board. Claude Kraft, election board clerk, said Monday that his office in the Pythian Castle will be open each day from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. except Friday when it will remain open until 6:30 p. m., the deadline for submitting petitions.

He announced also that several persons had filed their petitions during the last two days, including John G. Ward, who will run for the Democratic nomination for sheriff; A. L. Wilder, Democratic incumbent, who is seeking renomination to the office of clerk of courts; Wayne Hoover, Democratic candidate for county commissioner, and Henry T. McCrady, Democratic candidate for county engineer.

HARBAGE FINDS LUNCH COUNTER BUSINESS OFF

COLUMBUS, March 11—Opening the second week of his campaign to keep state employees at their desks and away from the state office building lunch counter during working hours, Arnett Harbage, West Jefferson farmer, reported progress today.

He counted 88 state workers at the lunch counter between 7:45 and 9:30 a. m., and observed:

"There ain't as many as there was a week ago."

Harbage allowed as how it might be a good thing if the lunch stand were removed from the building.

"Then," he said, "we would get a decent day's work—maybe."

He proudly exhibited the dime Governor Bricker gave him as one month's salary as an "investigator."

Copenhagen Publication Says That Duce And Ribbentrop Are Preparing Pact To Be Submitted To American Emissary

HELSINKI'S ATTITUDE HARDENS

Scandinavian Nation's Leaders Declare That They Will Not Forfeit Their Independence; New Aid Announced

LONDON, March 11—The Soviet government has set a time limit expiring tomorrow on the peace negotiations now under way with a Finnish delegation, a Reuters (British) dispatch from Stockholm said today. Reuters also reported that Klementi Voroshilov, Soviet war commissar, is participating in the peace talks at Moscow.

COPENHAGEN, March 11—The newspaper Berlingske Tidene reported in a Budapest dispatch today that Premier Mussolini, Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano and German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop are working on a peace plan in Rome.

The report said the plan will be presented to American Under Secretary of State Sumner Welles when he returns to Rome en route to the United States.

HELSINKI, March 11—Finnish sentiment against acceptance of Russia's peace proposals hardened today as informed quarters insisted this country would continue to fight rather than give up her independence.

One authoritative source said: "If Russia makes demands exceeding her previous terms last autumn, there will be no peace."

"Finland cannot give up her independence."

"Six hundred foreign warplanes are now fighting for Finland and this is proof that help can be obtained."

Walden, Mannerheim There

General Karl Walden is participating in the Moscow negotiations as representative of Field Marshal Baron Karl Mannerheim, Finnish commander-in-chief.

High quarters in Helsinki maintained utmost reticence regarding progress of the negotiations.

It was rumored, however, that the delegation headed by Premier Risto Ryti, having conferred with Soviet Premier-Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov this morning, is now en route to Helsinki to present the terms to the Finnish parliament.

In this connection Finnish authorities noted with interest an article in the Stockholm paper Folkets Dagblad claiming that the most important angle of the Moscow negotiations concerns an attempt to join Finland into a Russo-German "Lebensraum" (living space) scheme.

Unconfirmed reports stated that the meeting between Molotov and the Finnish negotiators was held in the American embassy in Moscow.

A Finnish spokesman indicated that the outcome of the negotiations may be known by tomorrow and indicated that the result may decide whether peace will be declared between Russia and Finland or whether, possibly, Europe's two wars will merge into a single, general conflict.

"Tuesday will be a critical day for both eastern and western Europe," this source said.

It was understood that the Fin- (Continued on Page Eight)

WELLES ASSERTS EUROPEAN TRIP 'CONFIDENTIAL'

LONDON, March 11—American Under Secretary of State Sumner Welles informed 60 correspondents today and through them the press of the world that his mission in Europe is confidential.

Reiterating the formula he announced in Paris, Welles said: "I am here solely to report to President Roosevelt on the present situation in Europe. Any views given to me by members of the governments are absolutely confidential and solely for the ear of the President."

"I have no proposals whatever to submit to the British or any other government. These are solely a fact-finding mission."

Welles received the correspondents at the American embassy in the presence of United States Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, with whom he conferred before plunging into formal conferences with British government leaders.

FIRE DESTROYS VALUED HORSES AT LUCASVILLE

Chillicothe, Kingston Men Suffer From Flames At Scioto Fairground

R. L. BLACK LOSES MOST Sparks From Rails Blamed For Causing Destructive Sunday Disaster

PORTSMOUTH, March 11—Nine show horses owned by Chillicothe and Kingston residents were among the 20 that perished Sunday in a $25,000 fire that destroyed two large barns at the Scioto County Fair Grounds, near Lucasville, 10 miles north of Portsmouth.

R. L. Black, Chillicothe, lost a stallion valued at $1,000 and four other horses. He approximated the value of all the horses that perished at $15,000, averaging $750 each. Black, who is a trainer and caretaker at the fairgrounds and operates a boarding stable and riding academy, suffered hand and face burns when he attempted to release the animals.

Charles McIlvaine and Earl Barnhart, both of Chillicothe, lost two and one horse, respectively. The loss of one horse was sustained by Dr. J. P. Gardner, Kingston.

Rail Sparks Blamed

The barns located close to the Norfolk and Western railroad tracks were said to have caught fire from the sparks of two trains that passed there shortly before the blaze was discovered in the cupola of the building where the horses were quartered.

A Negro stable attendant called Black's attention to the smoke rising from the cupola. Black at the time was giving instructions to several riders. The barn was filled with smoke and flames by the time Black reached it. The doors were closed and the cupola at the top provided a down draft that spread the flames quickly.

Ten horses in the horse barn and several ponies in the cattle barn were released by six men who were attracted to the scene by the flames. Four of the horses that were released returned to the barn and were destroyed.

A shift of the wind and the aid of the Valley Township firemen who came from Lucasville saved a long row of other barns that were threatened by the flames. A horse barn and a cattle barn were reduced to ashes. Harness, saddles, bridles, and feed, stored in the structures, were destroyed.

County Loses $7,500

James Phillips, clerk of the board of county commissioners, estimated the county's loss from the fire at $7,500. The barns were completed in 1937. The horse barn was 60 feet wide and 90 feet long and the cattle barn was 60 by 120 feet. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

County Bar Association Asked to Two-Day Forum

Lawyers of Pickaway County have been extended an invitation to attend the Forum being sponsored by the Columbus Bar Association and the Ohio State Bar Association to be held Saturday afternoon and evening, March 16, at the Deshler-Wallick Hotel in Columbus.

The trends of the law as indicated by the recent decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States will be discussed by Gregory Hankin of Washington, D. C., special counsel for the Federal Power Commission, and the trends of Ohio law as reflected by the decisions of the Supreme Court of Ohio will be discussed by the Hon. Herbert N. Gorman, member of the Cincinnati bar and former justice of the Supreme Court of Ohio.

Henry G. Binns, chairman of the education committee of the Columbus Bar Association in making announcement of the Forum stated, "The Forum of a year ago proved so interesting and instructive as to set a high mark for those to follow. The first session of the Forum will begin at 2:30 on Saturday afternoon in the ballroom of the hotel with Chief Justice Carl V. Weygant presiding. Each of the two speakers will be given an hour for the presentation of materials, after which one-half hour will be devoted to questions and discussion from the floor. McKELL ESTATE TO DEVELOP ITS OIL, GAS RIGHTS

CHILlicothe, March 11—Development of oil and gas rights of 9,939 acres of Gallia and Jackson County lands owned by the beneficiaries named in the will of William McKell became a possibility when a petition was filed in the Ross County Probate Court by guardian of the five McKell children asking for authority to sign a lease in behalf of his wards. The children reside in Chillicothe with their mother, Mrs. Estrella C. McKell.

Real and personal properties including the Gallia and Jackson County lands, were left by McKell to his cousins Charles A. Kilvert, Mary A. Kilvert, David McCandless McKell, Phoebe Perpont and the late William McKell. By succession the wards have undivided fifth interest in the property. The other holders have agreed to the lease negotiations.

The proposed lease would run for ten years and as long thereafter as oil and gas are found there in paying quantities, the lease price to be $1 a year for each acre or $99,390 for the specific period of the lease. Royalties would be one eighth of the value of the gas and oil.

Of the total acreage involved 4,509 acres are in Milton Township and 3,651 acres in Bloomfield Township, Jackson County and 1,779 acres in Huntington Township, Gallia County.

ASHVILLE

Sugar camps which used to be in full bloom this season of the year are almost unknown now. Many of these camps were in operation in the sugar and maple tree section of the county and gallons of maple syrup and great quantities of sugar made. There is but one of these of which we are telling in existence in the community. In the Ashville corporation limits in fact, that of our good citizen, John Sark, operating upon a two-tree basis, the one called "Franklin" carries two spiles and buckets and an extra fine producer of rich flowing stuff, but "Aif," the other one, carries only one spile and bucket with no flow—kinda all dried up.

Might just as well know it now. There is a "move on" and preliminary plans being made to change the dilapidated old council house and jail and fire engine shed into a real municipal building with auditorium and located somewhere in the downtown district. This move is only in keeping with other live villages throughout the state and should have the encouragement and support of our people who are looking forward to a bigger and better Ashville.

Just had to know about it. For the past sometime we've noticed a trailer hooked on behind with three or four bales of greenish appearing something that looked like hay. And yesterday morning the same thing showed up again. So we concluded something must be done about it. A rap or two upon a closed car window brought it open and we were greeted with a smiling and friendly appearing face which to us seemed to say: "Old man, what's wanted?" And then's when "the third" got to going again. We found that those hay bales were the very best alfalfa the Cromley boys over the creek have for sale and they are all for one cow. The party we had "on the rack" has for his boss John Keller's sister and that they lived not far away from John's on 104. And too, that he is a Ford salesman and actually gets 'em sold. # SAWYER BEHIND GEORGE WHITE FOR GOVERNOR?

Ohio Democrats Puzzled
As Former Executive
Enters Contest

LIMBACH ON BANDWAGON

Possibilities Seen That
Some Of Candidates May
Withdraw Names

COLUMBUS, March 11 — Confused Democratic leaders and followers today faced the problem of backing one of eight candidates for their party's gubernatorial nomination, including two former governors, Martin L. Davey and George White.

Entry of White into the contest yesterday promised to precipitate a bitter factional dispute, in which most of the anti-Daveyites would line up behind White.

Outcome of the expected battle hinged on whether any of the other six candidates would withdraw in an effort to "stop Davey" and urge their adherents to support White.

It was learned on good authority that National Committeeman Charles Sawyer, who defeated Davey for the nomination in 1938, and Democratic State Chairman Arthur L. Limbach would back White. However, neither would commit himself publicly, although the filing deadline is next Friday.

One of Limbach's aides revealed the fact that the state chairman had promised White a majority of the votes in his home county, Tuscarawas. It was known that Limbach and White conferred over the week end.

But whether the other candidates would withdraw for the sake of party "harmony" was problematical. Former Secretary of State William J. Kennedy, of Cleveland, announced several times that he was in the gubernatorial race "for the duration."

Others still in the contest, although they may drop out before Friday, are:

Former Attorney General Herbert J. Duffy, of Columbus; former Congressman-at-Large Harold G. Mosier, Cleveland; former State Highway Director James Marker, Versailles; James Flynn, Sandusky attorney, and Frank Dye, Columbus attorney.

Although Duffy has declared repeatedly he would remain in the race, it was learned that he also had circulated nominating petitions for attorney general and may decide finally to switch to that contest.

Marker was the only one who reportedly was willing to "get together" with other candidates to support one person with enough vote-getting power to defeat Davey.

For several weeks White was undecided as to his own candidacy and had urged a number of candidates to step aside and unite behind one man. When they refused, he announced his own candidacy. He said he had received at least 500 letters urging him to run.

"My motive for getting into the race is to carry out some of the things I was unable to do during my two terms in office because of the economic crisis," White said.

"I am running squarely on my record. Records show that the state income has increased 31 percent since I was governor, and I feel that with the increased money many things can be done and many activities started. In saying that I am not criticizing any of the governors that followed me into office."

White planned to leave soon for a Florida vacation and said he would not make an intensive fight for the nomination. He added:

"If the Democrats think I am the strongest man to face the opposition in November, I will welcome the opportunity to make the fight. If not, I will support the ticket with a smile."

Meanwhile, Mosier announced his platform, in which he pledged himself to increase old age pensions from a maximum of $30 to $40 per month without increasing taxes. He said it could be accomplished through his proposed "economy" administration.

He also said that he would oppose any political party "dominated by a foreign government."

White the gubernatorial contest approached a climax, the battle continued over selection of delegate candidates to the Democratic national convention.

On one side was the party slate, which is to go to the convention pledged to Sawyer as the "favorite son" with the stipulation that

Tonsils And Adenoids Discussed By Healthier

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is an interesting article on tonsils and adenoids prepared by Dr. A. D. Blackburn, Pickaway County health commissioner.

Tonsils and Adenoids
Diseased tonsils and enlarged adenoids are often the cause of much discomfort and may lead to many very serious complications. Tonsils frequently become infected and hold poisonous germs and pockets of pus which may cause trouble, not only in the throat, but in other parts of the body. Sometimes they become greatly enlarged, but a badly diseased tonsil may not be enlarged at all.

Adenoids are tucked away up behind the palate, in the back of the throat, and are therefore out of sight. Normal adenoid tissue is provided by nature and is a kind of moist cushion which helps to filter impurities out of the air after it passes through the nose. Frequently, this adenoid tissue grows abnormally and forms what are known as adenoids. These adenoid growths are so located that they interfere with natural nasal breathing, and the child is forced to breathe through the mouth.

Unless the proper treatment is now undertaken, the condition soon gets worse, and many complications follow. Children with adenoids usually also have diseased or enlarged tonsils. The child is usually pale, often narrow-chested and is not as strong and robust as other children and is subject to frequent colds, sore throat and earache.

But this is not all. There are other more serious complications. Adenoids affect the voice, they cause permanent disfigurement of the facial expression, they interfere with hearing and may lead to loss of sense of smell. An infected ear, mastoid disease, meningitis (brain fever) or brain abscess often follow diseased tonsils and adenoids.

If diseased tonsils and adenoids are allowed to remain untreated, they may, and frequently do, cause serious damage to the child's general health. Rheumatism and heart disease may follow. Constant colds and attacks of tonsillitis keep the child in a weakened condition and cause much loss of time from school.

There is a remarkable and close relationship between the condition of a child's nose and throat and the degree of intelligence it manifests. Quite often it is noticed that the child who seems stupid and who fails to do good work in school is made healthy and normal by having the tonsils and adenoids removed.

Treatment—Don't delay in securing medical attention for a child who shows signs of tonsil or adenoid trouble, or who has running ears. Both mouth breathing and repeated attacks of tonsillitis are serious conditions, and it is not fair to the child to allow them to continue. Take the child to the doctor. If he doctor recommends treatment or the removal of the tonsils or adenoids, follow his advice. Even in the case of a very young child, it may be necessary to remove the tonsils. Children they switch their votes to President Roosevelt if he seeks a third term.

On the other was a new group which former Democratic State Chairman Francis Poulsen reportedly was getting together in opposition to Sawyer but pledged to Roosevelt if he wanted them. Reports at first hinted that the second slate would support Postmaster General James A. Farley as the first choice, but to date Farley has indicated he would not run.

The paper backed up its sensational charges with a number of affidavits.

TOMMY THE CORK

Braintruster Tommy Corcoran ran true to form even in his own marriage. He was late as usual.

Always overloaded with engagements, he is rarely on time. It is commonplace with him to fill an appointment an hour or two after the time fixed. His marriage was no exception; in fact, he was tardy than usual. The ceremony took place three weeks after the date originally planned.

Only inner circle intimates know it, but the braintruster and his beautiful secretary, Peggy Dowd, had decided to get married the day after the President left on his Caribbean fishing cruise. But just then the battle broke over the selection of the trustee of the billion-dollar Associated Gas and Electric empire.

Storm center of this bitter row was Ben Cohen, Corcoran's teammate and the ace utility lawyer of the inner circle. Cohen viewed the choice of John Hanes, former Under Secretary of the Treasury who was being strongly backed by certain Wall Street interests, as a direct challenge to the Administration and its utility policies.

He opened a militant offensive against Hanes, and Corcoran rushed in to the fray to help his side-kick. And shoulder-to-shoulder with both was Peggy, who readily agreed to postpone her marriage plans until the fight was over.

The battle raged through most of February. Finally, Hanes withdrew and three trustees acceptable to the Administration were appointed. A new date, March 4, was fixed for the marriage. That day, at the hour when Tom, Peggy and their best man, Ben, were supposed to be at the church, the young Dominican priest who was to perform the ceremony was called to the phone.

"Father Joubert, this is Tom Corcoran. I'm in Washington."

"Yes, Tom. What is it. Associated again?"

"No, not this time, Father. We've been delayed by a last minute job, but we're all ready now and we'll be there in an hour and a half. Will that be all right with you?"

It was and so—three weeks and one hour and a half late—Tom Corcoran and Peggy Dowd finally were married.

NOTE—After their engagement last year, Peggy took over managing Corcoran's personal finances, allowed him only $2 a day for pocket money.

AGAINST SPENDING

IF a current Gallup poll is accurate, there is a change in the public attitude toward spending for local purposes. Other things being equal, voters say, they prefer candidates who promise to cut federal funds rather than promising to obtain federal funds for their districts. The ratio of voters for candidates who favor economy rather than spending is almost two to one.

This is a reassuring attitude. Whether it will actually be backed up in practice is another question. Almost any citizen of almost any community, when asked if he favors economy, will say yes, of course. But in recent practice, citizens of most communities have eagerly grasped at federal money for any kind of local improvements. They have mostly done this on the ground that they were getting something for nothing, or that some other community would get the money if they didn't take it. The result, in many places, has been a competition in finding local projects to spend money for.

The economics involved is a matter for much argument. Some projects have been valuable and some haven't. The present point is the mental attitude that so many people and communities have adopted about this sort of thing. Spending needlessly just to keep other communities from getting and spending the money is bad psychology and bad finance. The time has come to weigh impartially the value of all public expenditures, avoiding much wasteful competition.

SAFETY

THERE is no end to the wonders of industrial science. Life is being made tighter and safer. There are pneumatic tubes now for automobiles and trucks that seal themselves when punctured, without letting the air out. Germany has produced gasoline tanks and pipes for airplanes that likewise repair themselves and continue service when perforated by bullets. Thus we shall soon be traveling more safely by land and air.

In a thousand ways this generation becomes more efficient through the use of automatic mechanism. More and more of our operations are watched and controlled by that marvelous device, the "electric eye," with its more-than-human accuracy. In the realm of human nature and political science, however, we're not so good as the instruments we create.

Bigger nations have been trying to destroy Finland for a thousand years, and haven't got it done yet.

Governments and children can be made "good" by paying them for it.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

MAYOR FIORELLO H. LA GUARDIA of New York didn't need to announce, as he did the other day, that he isn't a candidate for a presidential nomination. Scarcely anybody, if anybody at all, thought he was. Oh, his name's been mentioned, but not seriously; not by any practical, competent politician.

Not that he hasn't been a first-class mayor. It generally is agreed that he's been a dandy. He was a fine congressman, too, from the standpoint of folk of a pretty radical tendency. He's a bang-up campaigner. He's a dynamic chap. He's as smart as a whip. He knows the country also. He was born in Arizona. He isn't the kind of New Yorker who never heard of anything west of Manhattan Island.

But what party would nominate him? He served in congress as a Republican and as a Socialist. He's been mayor as a Fusionist and an American Labor Party-ite. He never officially decorated himself with the Democratic label, but he's a New Dealer—if that makes him a Democrat. An ex-Republican or two (such as Agriculture Secretary Henry A. Wallace) have been suggested as Democratic possibilities, but Wallace's record wouldn't be a circumstance in comparison with Fiorello's variations.

MUCH TOO WEAK

To refer to Mayor La Guardia as a "liberal" is much too weak. "Radical" is the word. At least he's a radical in theory. The fact that he served on Capitol Hill as a Socialist speaks for itself.

But Fiorello never made his radicalism ridiculous, as a lot of extreme "leftists" do. The reason undoubtedly is that he has tip-top ability and good taste and a sense of humor. He didn't even say that he isn't a presidential candidate in a way to imply that he BELIEVES he is. He dismissed the notion as a joke.

I'm not so sure that he's a radical as he used to pretend—and maybe used to consider himself. In congress, where his radicalism (consisting of 1) wasn't numerous enough to signify, he preached it "ad lib." He ran for the house of representatives as a Socialist because his district's Republicans, deeming him over-extreme, had eulched him out of a renomination. Whereupon the Socialist said, "All right, WE'LL nominate you." To which Fiorello, with almost incredible nerve, replied, "O. K. Go ahead." And, still more incredibly, he won. He did it, I'll venture to assert, on the strength of his personality; not because he was a Socialist.

As mayor of New York, while still a radical, he's been no second edition of Stalin or Hitler or Mussolini. On the contrary, he's said that Hitler ought to be put in a "chamber of horrors." And it made Adolf so sore that he protested to the state department about it. That was wonderful advertising for Fiorello.

AN IMPOSSIBILITY

All the same, as a presidential possibility, he's an IM-possibility. Imagine an ex-Socialist running for the presidency of the United States!

He'd be a super-interesting candidate, to be sure. And if he ever got into the White House—oh, my! But, "Phooey!"—as Fiorello himself has remarked of all the Republican possibilities who have been mentioned. As a radical, he can't stomach any of THEM.

He likewise recognizes that he's too close to his Italian ancestry (only one degree removed) to figure presidentially in this country. And his first name, Fiorello ("Little Flower"), he has admitted to me, would be a fatal handicap. It isn't so much dwell on now, but it would be dug up, with devastating results, he once assured me, in the event of a major campaign.

Fiorello was a rip-snorting aviator during the World war. "I never," he told me, while he was a member of congress, "went up in a plane that I wasn't scared to death.

"I guess I ain't much of a hero."

PITY THE POOR HATERS

WASHINGTON—Most tragic joke played on anyone during the last ten years probably is on the little band of Roosevelt-haters who became British subjects and moved to Nassau to escape the New Deal.

There was no income tax in the British Bahamas, practically no property tax, no SEC restrictions on stock market trading. Americans moving to Nassau merely had to live there six months of the year to escape every penny of New Deal taxation. They could cable their orders to the New York Stock Exchange, blissfully ignore the Securities and Exchange Commission, the Holding Corporation Act and all the regulatory curbs which the New Deal has placed upon big business.

Furthermore, while taking out British citizenship, they could commute—one hour and a half by air—to Miami and Palm Beach, and they could spend their summers in Newport or Saratoga.

But now, almost overnight, war has destroyed their blissful paradise. Now they are subjected to all the wartime hazards and penalties of any British subject.

RE-ELECT ROOSEVELT?

Last week a crowd of these "nouveaux" British crowded around L. W. (Chip) Robert, secretary of the Democratic National Committee, at the Bahamian Club, wailing bitterly.

"What are we going to do?" they cried. "We had saved up enough to last us all our lives, but now the British Government is taking up all our American securities, and giving us depreciated English government bonds in return."

(They referred to the fact that Great Britain, in order to secure cash to pay for war purchases in the United States, is requiring all British subjects to surrender their American stocks and bonds. Naturally, American citizens moving to the Bahamas hold more American securities than the average Britisher, so are hit hardest.)

"Besides," complained another new British subject, "we're likely to be drafted. If this war lasts long enough we'll all be in the British army fighting against Hitler."

"If I could vote back in Connecticut now," moaned another, "I think I would vote for Roosevelt. He's doing his best to stop this war. And if this war continues we're going to be ruined."

"Is Roosevelt going to run for a third term, Chip?" came another question. "If he can stop this war, I hope he gets re-elected."

"But just suppose," wailed the last one, "that Roosevelt stays in the White House for four more years and this war continues just the same!"

NOTE—That evening, Chip Robert, trying his fortunes on the roulette wheels of the Bahamian Club, won $897. "Just New Deal luck," lamented the new British subjects who watched him.

DIET AND HEALTH

Check Now for Rickets, Spring's Great Disease

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
HAVE YOUR children been examined carefully this spring? It has been a hard winter and they have probably been getting less sun and exercise than usual. Be sure that they haven't any signs of the great spring disease of children, which is rickets.

Rickets is a disease peculiar to childhood. It is caused by lack of vitamin D, which is manufactured in the body by exposure to sunlight. It can usually be prevented or cured by the use of food products containing the vitamin. Vitamin D is fat-soluble and is, therefore, found in oils, particularly fish-liver oils—cod-liver oil, halibut-liver oil, salmon-liver oil, etc. It can also be obtained in an artificially irradiated vegetable oil.

Children vary, however, in their need for vitamin D. They vary, therefore, in their need for sunlight and for cod-liver oil. Those with dark skin, particularly, need more because the dark skin filters out the sun rays which produce vitamin D. Even if a child has had protective measures during the winter, it is well to think of these variations and to examine all of them under your care, especially for rickets.

Nutritional Disease
Rickets is a nutritional disease which affects, particularly, the bones and the digestive apparatus. The first symptoms may be slight digestive disturbances, so slight as hardly to be thought worthy of notice. The appetite is finicky; there are little attacks of regurgitation of food and diarrhea; the stools are clay-colored and offensive. The weight, however, may mysteriously remain stationary.

Attacks of sweating, especially sweating around the head, are significant. If the child's pillow is wet in the morning, it means something. The sweating attacks recur during sleep, and sometimes to gain relief the child kicks off the bed clothes and catches cold.

The rickety child is tender. (I am speaking now of the early stages of rickets.) The bones have not grown properly and lifting or changing position may cause a crying spell and a reaction of irritation out of all proportion to the amount of disturbance.

Late Stage Symptoms
Of course, in the later stages, when you have a fully developed case, the diagnosis is easy. The child looks pale, the eyes protrude and the whites are chalky white. The abdomen is distended and the chest shows the series of enlargements at the junction of the ribs and the rib cartilages known as the "rachitic rosary." The spine may show a curvature and the breast-bone sticks outward.

Treatment should be based upon the liberal use of properly standardized cod-liver oil. By "properly standardized" is meant cod-liver oil which meets the standards of the U. S. Pharmacopoeia. There should be exposure to sunshine and fresh air. The child should not be allowed to walk or crawl until it is certain that the bones are strong enough and that deformities will not result. Besides this, plenty of good food of all varieties, fresh in character, should be administered.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clending has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. RICHARD HOUGHTON

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:

L. Bill Strickland, an suspected in the murder of my friend, Alfred Markham, young jeweler, at a party in the Riverside clubhouse of the Rio Vista club.

CHAPTER THREE

ST. CLAIR opened the front door, admitting four men, three obviously policemen in plain clothes, and the fourth a young fellow I'd met in the office of The Morning Eagle.

The short and chunky leader of the police trio announced, "I'm Captain Clyde McDonald." The cigar he was chewing rolled from one side of his mouth to the other. "Murder, eh?" His gray eyes swept the members and guests, then snapped back to the club president.

"I'm afraid so," St. Clair said. "The body's in the rear court." He started to usher them across the clubroom.

"Never mind. Has it been disturbed?"

"Oh, no. We thought—" St. Clair handed him the key to the glass doors.

"Right. O'Brien and O'Rourke, you look around. Make sure nothing is touched until the coroner comes."

Despite his brusqueness the captain was ill at ease among the formally attired guests. He suddenly remembered to take off his hat, and put it on the piano. "Stabbed?" he asked, turning to St. Clair again. "Alfred Markham, wasn't it? Jeweler?"

St. Clair nodded. "I didn't see the weapon, but it was obvious from the blood. . . . But why fire all these questions at me? You can't think that I . . ."

"As far as I'm concerned," Captain McDonald told him dryly, "everyone is suspected. Coroner Silver may have different ideas. We'll see. My duty is to make sure that no one leaves this place until he's through questioning you."

The reporter pulled out a pad of note paper and mumbled as though to himself: "Item number one. Police encircle joint."

St. Clair flushed.

Headlights flashed across the window as another automobile swung around the drive.

I expected the coroner to be a funeral old person, but the man who came through the door was young, tall and handsome, and faultlessly attired in evening clothes. I disliked him immediately for the way he drew off his driving gloves and greeted us with a smile. "Lovely night," he said.

"Some think so—and some don't," the reporter observed without looking up from the notebook on which he was scribbling.

The coroner was followed by a press photographer, loaded down with camera and armload of flash bulbs.

"Where's the body?" the photographer asked.

Now that they were all here the captain, coroner and news hounds moved through the rear doors and out into the court. One of the officers remained on guard.

It was a lovely summer night—Coroner Silver was right about that—but it was too warm. My collar was uncomfortable. I shifted from foot to foot.

The others seemed to be uneasy. Mabel Mercer lighted a cigaret and threw it into the fireplace after one puff. Helen Whalen was putting on lipstick and doing a bad job of it.

"I don't like the attitude of that reporter," St. Clair remarked.

"He acted as though he had a personal peeve against you," Frank observed. "When did you and he ever collide before?"

St. Clair grimaced. "I had him thrown out of the clubhouse one night several months ago. He's a snooper!"

"Newspaper people can come in handy as friends," Jack Berry suggested quietly.

"Good grief!" exclaimed Marge Winch. "Why should you have anyone thrown out? There's nothing to hide—or is there?"

Unexpectedly the court outside flashed white. I saw the silhouette of the cameraman as he took his picture, and the faces of the coroner and captain as they bent over a dark form sprawled by the lily pool.

"My God!" gasped St. Clair. "They won't publish a photograph of the body, will they?"

"They're probably just making a record for court evidence," Jack Berry reassured him, "although, after your treatment of newspaper men I wouldn't be surprised if—"

A horrible fascination gripped me, so that when a second flash came a minute later my eyes were focused directly on the corpse of Alfred Markham.

Muriel, near me, threw her hands up before her face.

"Shouldn't we notify the Markham family?" Jerry asked in a shaky voice. "They ought to know."

Helen shuddered. "I wouldn't want to be the one to break the news."

"How does one go about that sort of thing?" Frank wanted to know. "Isn't it usually left up to the police?"

"Usually the first the family knows about it is when the newspapers telephone and ask for a photograph and a life history," Jack told us. "It's a brutal procedure, and it's probably already been done."

"Luckily there's no one ill in his family."

"How much of a family is there?"

"Just his brother George and sister Louise," Helen told us. "Most of you don't know Louise. She's a dear. She'll take it hard. George is not a bad sort, but he is quick tempered and unreasonable. He'd have us all arrested if he thought it would do any good."

"Do you suppose the murderer is in this room?" Mabel asked wildly.

"Nonsense," said Jack Berry. "It was done by an outsider. No one here had the slightest desire to harm Al. But before we jump to any conclusions let's wait and hear what the officers have to say."

Our wait was long, and it seemed longer before the glass doors at last opened and the coroner and captain of detectives re-entered, followed by the reporter and cameraman.

The coroner went immediately to the telephone and jiggled it. "Give me Brentwell 600," he said. "Hello, this is Coroner Silver speaking. Send a hearse to the Rio Vista club." He dropped the receiver back on the hook without waiting for a reply. "And now, captain, I would like to borrow one of your men to take notes while I ask questions."

The captain shrugged. "O'Brien, see what you can do for Mr. Silver." He tossed his chewed cigar into the fireplace, stuck another in his mouth and began to wander meditatively around the room, examining the various articles of furniture as though the coroner's questions were of secondary importance. I had an uncomfortable feeling that his gray eyes were secretly studying us from the rear.

"Names first," Coroner Silver directed. "I'll want the names and addresses of everyone here, what you were doing, what you knew about Alfred Markham. And, O'Brien, be careful you don't miss anything."

O'Brien grunted. He didn't look too pleased to be taking orders from someone fifteen years his junior.

The coroner looked at me. His eyes were cold, calculating. "I think," he said, "that I'll start with you. Your face is familiar. I should know you."

A chromium holder filled with jonquils, pansies, sweet peas and pussy willows centered the table where the delightful turkey dinner was served. Pink carnation favors marked each place.

Today's Garden-Graph

Nudging Nature With Early Peas

As soon as the ground can be worked in the Spring, peas can be planted. One does not run any danger in thus nudging Nature a bit in the matter of early peas, for they are a cold weather vegetable and the young seedlings are not injured by late frosts and snow. For the first planting use the quick-growing dwarf varieties.

When planting peas, do not merely broadcast them, for this is a waste of seed. The accompanying Garden-Graph shows the correct and the economical method of planting peas. This method calls for a flat-bottomed trench, six inches wide. On the flat bottom of the trench stagger the peas two to three inches apart. Space the trenches eighteen inches apart.

Early peas should be sown one inch deep in heavy soil and two inches deep in light soil. Firm the soil over the seed. Do not soak the seed of early peas overnight.

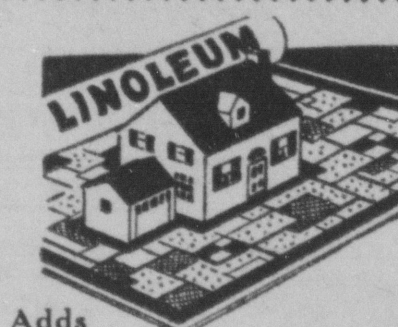

Early peas do not need supports. A little brush placed along the rows will give early peas all the climbing support they need.

The 1933rd session of the Leipzig Trade Fair, at Leipzig, Germany, opens in March, 1940, having operated without interruption through the Thirty Years war, the Napoleonic wars, the World war, and countless political and financial disturbances.

Chillicothe City Club, 36; Eshelman Feeds, 24.
Newark Gasco, 51; Stone's Grill, Chillicothe, 41.
On Friday's card are Federal Glass vs. Gosnell Funeral Home at 8:30 and Chillicothe City Club vs. Newark Gasco at 9:30.

The Federals had little trouble with the Columbus Tramp crew, although the ultimate losers were ahead at halftime, 14-12. All members of the Federal quintet started to hit in the last half, while the Tramps went to pieces, H. Lynch and Nelson, center and guard, going out of the game for foul infractions.

The Gosnell-Leader A. C. tilt was a thriller through almost its entirety, shooting of Richardson and Phillips keeping the Negro lads in the ball game. But Cree, Delashmuth and Maloney started to hit for the Gosnells in the last five minutes to clinch the fray.

Eshelman Feeds, last Circleville survivor, played even with the Chillicothe City Club crew until the last few minutes when the locals tired. Eshelman trailed by only two points as the half ended, 14-12.

A shortage of reserve strength cut down the Eshelman team's chances, Ed Reichelderfer going "barn dancing" and Chuck Young being out with a bad ankle.

(The Chillicothe team was cheered on by members of a rival Circleville team that opposed the Eshelmans in the City League which just ended.)

Newark Gasco had too many guns for the Chillicothe Stone's Grill outfit although the Ross Countians held an 18-17 lead at halftime. All members of the Newark club hit the hoop with regularity in the last half, Loar, a forward, leading the parade with four buckets were action. The Gasco team scored 14 field goals in the last half.

STARS SAY—

For Monday, March 11

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for another day of definite success and conspicuous action, which may lead into unusual or surprising grooves. New matters of constructive nature are in order, possibly in co-operation with large corporations, secret societies, political or diplomatic circles. There will be obstacles or postponements, but ingenuity, innovation and tact should win the day.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of unforeseen and surprising activity, which may result in conspicuous success if new ideas and bold initiative or novelty are adopted. Subtlety and finesse, especially in dealing with important or secret organizations, are advised. Obstacles and opposition may be successfully combated. Safeguard the health of the household.

A child born in this day may be original, audacious and independent, as well as subtle and given to strategem or intrigue. It may have its times of depression and feelings of frustration, particularly if its emotional life is disturbed.

A nation's greatness resides not in her material resources, but in her will, faith, intelligence and moral forces.—J. M. Hoppin.

JOHNNY WHITERS TAKES ON SIMMS FRIDAY EVE

COLUMBUS, March 11 — The twice postponed heavyweight fight between Johnny Whitters, of Pontiac, Mich., and Eddie Simms, Cleveland, will take place Friday night, it was announced today. Simms' uncertain health was responsible for the delay. He has been suffering from a chest cold and dental trouble.

WALKER IN TRAINING

COLUMBUS, March 11 — Jack "Buddy" Walker, Columbus negro heavyweight and Ohio title holder, tapered off in training today for his Wednesday night fight in Cincinnati against Tom Kenelly. Walker will be seeking his 18th consecutive victory.

Pass the Cole Slaw, Grandpa!

Come on up for a fish dinner, brothers and sisters, for we've got plenty. You sure have, mister, and what beauties! Rolfe Bulling of Hastings, Mich., speared these muskellunge through the ice of Thornapple lake near his home on successive days. State conservation officials said it is the greatest catch of muskellunge ever made in two days of fishing on any Michigan lake. The two weigh 77 pounds.

REDS FACE YANK ACES

TAMPA, Fla., March 11—Manager Joe McCarthy of the New York Yankees selected Pitchers Pearson, Hadley and Sunda for mound duty in today's training camp game against the Cincinnati Reds, National League champs. The Yanks beat the Cardinals 8 to 7 with a ninth inning homer by Gordon at St. Petersburg yesterday, evening their series at one-all.

SHE GOT THE JOB

SALT LAKE CITY—Apparently on the theory that she at least has initiative, six Salt Lake City employers offered Miss Dana E. Jones a job after Miss Jones inserted an ad in the newspaper which read: "Incompetent, unoriginal steno needs a job. Cannot be secretary because she never passed the ugly duckling stage." The young lady accepted one of the offers.

ST. LOUIS TEAM GOES AHEAD IN A. B. C. MEET

DETROIT, March 11 — First place in the team event of the American Bowling Congress championship tournament was held today by the Silver Seal Sodas of St. Louis with Milwaukee ruling the singles division on a smashing 682 series by Henry Halfman, 46-year-old veteran of six tournaments.

The St. Louis contingent chalked up games of 867, 943, and 1033 for a 2843, their closing game being the highest of the tourney to date.

Right behind the Missouri team was the Parkway Recreation of Milwaukee with a total of 2801. Milwaukee also nabbed the spotlight in the doubles firing when John Martin and Cy Berg rolled 1195, which included a final game of 452.

32 Cage Teams Ready for State Tourney

COLUMBUS, March 11—High school kids from skyscraper studded cities and wooded hamlets, where two and three room shanties predominate prepared today to rub elbows in the state scholastic basketball tournament.

From Lawrence and Jefferson counties' obscure Kitts Hill and Smithfield—population 62—to the rambling industrial areas surrounding Cincinnati, Akron, Canton and Toledo, 32 squads emerged from district competition eligible for the widely heralded state classic in Columbus beginning Thursday.

Survivors from 1,144 quintets that hit the hazardous tournament trail in November, the 32 schools —16 Class A and 16 Class B—will battle for the crowns vacated by Akron North and North Canton, both eliminated in district play.

This morning, representatives from the following schools were to convene in High School Athletic Commissioner H. R. Townsend's office for drawings into the four brackets in each tourney.

Class A: Defiance, Findlay, Bellevue, Toledo Waite, Akron South, Akron Buchtel, Canton Lehman, Massillon, Canton McKinley, New Philadelphia, Martins Ferry, Marietta, Columbus Central, Cincinnati Woodward, Dayton Fairview and Bellefontaine.

Class B: Rittman, Wayne County; Canfield, Mahoning County;

Waynesburg, Stark County; Midvale, Tuscarawas County; Smithfield, Jefferson County; Marysville, Union County; Amanda, Fairfield County; Glenford, Perry County; Kitts Hill, Lawrence County; New Carlisle, Clark County; Hanover, Germantown, Montgomery County; Sandusky St. Marys; Willshire, Van Wert County; Holgate, Henry County; Bluffton, Allen County.

In Class A, five quintets were in the state meet in 1939. They were Findlay, Akron Buchtel, Massillon, Dayton Fairview and Bellefontaine. In Class B, Rittman, Amanda, Glenford and Sandusky St. Marys, a finalist last year, were set for a second consecutive shot at the title.

Only three squads in the tournament have ever won state titles. Findlay captured the flag way back in 1912, Marietta in 1914 and Sandusky St. Marys in 1936. Last year, North Canton knocked off Sandusky to snare the B title.

Four schools entered the fracas unbeaten during the season. They were Canton McKinley, Cincinnati Woodward and New Philadelphia in Class A and Smithfield in Class B. New Philadelphia five, which reached the finals in 1938 but was eliminated in the first round last year, produced this year a well balanced quintet—rugged and geared with power to spare on

AMANDA TAKES DISTRICT TITLE

Fielding Boys Eliminate Marysville And Marion St. Mary's Last Day

Champion of the Central Ohio District Class B, Amanda's fine high school basketball team looked forward Monday for new fields to conquer and didn't have to look far since the state tournament comes up next week end. The Amanda lads, coached by Trevor Jones, had little trouble turning back Jerry Kingsmore's Marysville varsity in the final event at Westerville Saturday night, 31-25, sterling Wayne Hiatt pacing the Fairfield titlists with seven buckets.

George Marshall, 35, Orleans, Indiana, led the parade Sunday afternoon when he was charged with driving at 45 miles per hour on North Court Street. He posted a bond of $10 pending a hearing.

At 6:25 p. m. Milford Jackson, 22, Lovers Lane, was arrested and charged with reckless operation on East Mound Street. Jackson will have his hearing at 7 p. m. Monday unless he forfeits a $20 bond which he posted.

Speeding and reckless operation were the charges placed against William Holland, 24, Charleston, West Virginia, who was arrested at 7:15 p. m. Sunday on North Court Street. The facts of his driving at 43 miles per hour will be heard at 7 p. m. on Monday, March 18. He posted a $10 bond.

John M. Harbart, 35, Jackson, brought up the rear at 8 p. m. when he gave the police a $20 bond after he was charged with reckless operation on North Court Street. Mayor William Cady, who will hear all the cases, has set Harbart's down for 8 p. m. Friday, March 15.

George Clark, Lancaster, driving east on East Main Street Saturday afternoon hit the parked car of Don Mason, North Court Street, parked just east of Mason's Service Station. The rear of the body of the Mason car was dented and a spring broken while the front end of Clark's car was smashed by the impact. Riding with Clark were his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Clark, Lancaster, but no one was injured.

Driving along Route 56 west of Pherson, Franklin Price, 28, Jackson Township, crashed into the car of the Rev. J. C. Wright, Derby, at 7 p. m. Sunday, badly damaging both cars.

John Wright, 15, son of the Rev. Mr. Wright was driving the car east on 56 and was rammed by the Price car also traveling east when he attempted to turn into the church driveway. Price, who was trying to pass the Wrights, told Sheriff Charles Radcliff that no indication had been given that young Wright was going to make a left turn.

Riding in the car with John were his parents, the Rev. and Mrs. Wright. Price was alone in his car. No injury was sustained by the occupants of either automobile.

RECONCILIATION OF VATICAN AND GERMANY HINTED

Von Ribbentrop To Visit Mussolini, Ciano Before Returning Home

Von Ribbentrop was greeted by two knights of the Cape and Sword, one of them a German, Herr Hess-Steffen.

Prior to Von Ribbentrop's arrival at San Damaso Square, the honorary palatine guard was withdrawn. A double squad of Swiss guards presented arms in the Clementine Hall at the entrance to the pontifical apartment as Von Ribbentrop entered the Pope's private library at 11 a. m.

Von Ribbentrop was scheduled to confer with both Premier Mussolini and Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano this afternoon and attend an official dinner before departing for Berlin aboard the 9:30 p. m. train.

King Victor Emmanuel received Von Ribbentrop at 9 a. m. for a conference that lasted half an hour.

After his talk with the Pope, Von Ribbentrop conferred for 45 minutes with Cardinal Maglione. Almost immediately thereafter the papal secretary of state visited the German embassy.

While the German statesman conversed with the pope—both speaking German—a crowd of several thousand persons gathered in St. Peter's Square. They cheered Von Ribbentrop as he left the Vatican.

It was learned that Vatican and Italian government officials conferred for an hour on Saturday before Von Ribbentrop's request for a papal audience was granted. Vatican circles emphasized that the initiative for the audience was entirely German and expressed doubts that concrete results will be forthcoming immediately.

The talk, according to these quarters, was more concerned with general political than religious matters and some Vatican quarters even expressed suspicions regarding Germany's motives in seeking the contact with the Vatican.

TUESDAY VITAL DAY FOR FINNS

Possibility that they may fall was not entirely ruled out by informed quarters in the Finnish capital.

Delegation Chief Flayed Apprehension along this line was increased after the Moscow radio broadcast a sharp attack early this morning against the Finnish premier, Risto Ryti, chief of the delegation which Finland sent to Moscow.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Prior to this attack on Ryti, the Rome radio broadcast a report that a tentative basis of agreement had been reached and that the Finns were resigned to loss of the Carelian Isthmus and Petsamo area, but were holding out against Russian demands for the strategic Hangoe Peninsula and the area north of Lake Ladoga.

(Russia, said the broadcast, was concentrating fresh troops for a new attack against the Carelian Isthmus if the peace talks fail.)

Stockholm advices stated without confirmation that Ryti had left Moscow during the night to present the Russian peace terms to his cabinet for acceptance or rejection. These reports indicated that American Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt is playing an important role in the Moscow negotiations.

(The London Daily Express reported from Stockholm that it was believed Steinhardt in a personal interview with Ryti advised the premier that an armistice probably would be the best policy for Finland.)

Swedes Meet, Too At the same time, Helsinki officials awaited with interest the results of a meeting of the Swedish parliament's foreign affairs committee called for today. It was anticipated the committee would consider a Swedish security guarantee to Finland in the event of peace or, if the war continues, permission for passage of a large body of allied troops across Swedish territory.

Official announcement of the peace negotiations was made amid suddenly intensified Russian land and air attacks in which several Finnish towns were bombed.

Finnish troops were said to have inflicted heavy casualties on the Russians, particularly on the Carelian Isthmus and it was understood that 1,000 Russians fell dead before Finnish artillery and airplane attacks as they sought to extend the Finnish foothold on the western shore of Viborg (Viipuri) Bay.

Russian planes attacked a number of Finnish towns and also machine gunned a train. Casualties and damage were reported to be considerable.

BRITISH REJECT MEDIATOR ROLE

(Continued from Page One) dra Kollontay, Soviet envoy to Sweden and Russia's famous sharp-shooting woman diplomat, made a similar approach to the Stockholm government.

Thus Sweden became intermediary in the Russo-Finnish peace negotiations.

A British government spokesman said: "Sweden, unlike ourselves, passed on the Russian terms to Finland."

"Apparently the Swedes have not the same scruples as ourselves about putting forward such terms."

International News Service learned on excellent authority that the Russian terms included cession to the U. S. S. R. of all Finnish territory converging on Lake Ladoga including Viborg (Viipuri) and other towns and cities in that area.

The Russians also demanded the entire Carelian Isthmus and all the islands in the Gulf of Finland now occupied by Soviet forces. In addition, they demanded the eastern half of the Rybach Peninsula and a long-term lease on the Hangoe Peninsula for use as a Soviet naval base.

The Hangoe area is strategically located at the western entrance to the Gulf of Finland.

"These terms," the British spokesman remarked, "had no compensating factors either territorially or commercially."

STOCKHOLM—Soviet troops have thrown a semi-circle around Viborg (Viipuri) and have intensified their attacks in an effort to capture the city in time to influence current peace negotiations, the newspaper Aftonbladet reported from Helsinki today.

PARIS—Increased patrol activity on the Western Front and one clash in the Vosges Mountain area in which a German group was repulsed while trying to approach the French lines were reported in dispatches to Paris today.

LIVESTOCK ASSOCIATION LISTS FEBRUARY GAINS

Reporting a 31 percent increase in volume for February over the corresponding period of 1939, Harry Briggs, manager of the Pickaway Livestock Cooperative Association, said that the association handled 3,350 head of livestock representing 1,122,370 pounds.

The 70 carloads had a value of $76,979 and covered the marketing of 540 consignments. Fifty-one carloads were shipped in 1939 at a value of $67,842 on the 2,384 head of livestock.

Money increases cannot be used as a basis for measuring business gains because of price fluctuations, Mr. Briggs said, but volume is the best gauge for business increases.

World Affairs Vital Secondly, the President told callers that Farley was disqualified by his lack of knowledge and experience in international affairs. Mr. Roosevelt says privately, as he has said publicly, that world affairs will dominate American problems for some years to come.

Thirdly, the President has raised the Catholic question against Farley. He has said he did not like to see a religious issue injected into a political campaign which he believes will be fraught with grave consequences to the nation. He said his opinion was shared by many leading Catholics of the nation.

But, the President has added to callers, if the convention should ignore his opinion and nominate Farley, it will be alright with him. However, he promptly added, he does not expect to see Farley nominated for either post.

At his cabinet dinner last week, Mr. Roosevelt called Farley "my dear friend Jim." And he added this modicum of praise for Farley by saying:

"We've gone through seven years together and Jim has been one of the most loyal friends I've ever known."

Farley Remains Quiet Farley meanwhile has held his peace. His friends say he was shocked by the Lindley article and more so by Mr. Roosevelt's failure to repudiate it. To one friend, Farley said he did not believe the article was accurate, but to others, he said he had long known Mr. Roosevelt was opposed to his nomination, including the religious reason, and that he was glad the issue had been brought into the open.

Farley has told many friends he is opposed to a third term for Mr. Roosevelt and would speak out against it at the proper time. To some, he has said he will never "break with the chief."

FARLEY TICKET WILL BE FILED FOR OHIO VOTE (Continued from Page One) Secret White House instructions, he will not only declare himself but will openly throw down the gauntlet to his "chief."

The outcome of the Ohio fight is certain to have far-reaching effect on Roosevelt's plans. If the Sawyer ticket wins, the third-termers will be greatly strengthened. If Farley scores, it will be a stunning blow to them.

Catholic Quarters Suspect Motives Of Attache's Journey To Rome

ROME, March 11.—For a conference which may prove of great importance to German-Vatican relations, Pope Pius XII today received German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop in audience and conversed with him for 65 minutes.

Earlier the German diplomat conferred for half an hour with King Victor Emanuel at the Quirinal palace.

There was no immediate announcement of the trend of the talk between His Holiness and Von Ribbentrop, but advance predictions had indicated that it might be aimed at a reconciliation between Germany and the Holy See.

Pope Pius received Von Ribbentrop in the Vatican library. After the audience Von Ribbentrop emerged smiling broadly and went to call on Cardinal Maglione, the papal secretary of state.

Summary of state. While Von Ribbentrop continued his consultations, informed quarters gave this summary of the present situation:

Italy, while faithfully living up to her alliance with Germany, will continue her policy of non-belligerence, relying on Premier Mussolini's "serene and realistic policies to put a brake on precipitation of events."

Italy's controversy with England is moving toward an honorable compromise, it was said.

Italo-American relations continue to be excellent, and Italo-Russian ones are tending to improve.

Ribbentrop was accompanied by eight aides when he went to the Vatican for the audience, including Dr. Alfred Ciodius, ace German economic negotiator. All were in uniform.

BRITAIN REJECTED MEDIATOR'S ROLE, AVERS SPOKESMAN

LONDON, March 11.—The British government revealed officially today that it refused last month to transmit Russian peace proposals to Finland on grounds that Moscow's terms were too severe.

The announcement said the Russian government on February 22 asked Britain to transmit peace terms to Finland but that the British government declined to do so since the terms "appeared to leave Finland in a hopeless plight."

An official statement said that Soviet Ambassador Ivan Maisky called on Parliamentary Under Secretary Richard Butler and invited the British government to transmit peace terms to Helsinki.

The statement added: "These terms appeared to His Majesty's government to be of such an extremely onerous nature that they would leave Finland in a hopeless plight."

Refused to act. "Under these circumstances His Majesty's government refused to act as intermediary."

"His Majesty's government notified the Finnish government that such an approach had been made but did not reveal the terms except to say that it felt they were too onerous."

It was learned authoritatively that at the same time as Maisky approached Britain, Mme. Alexander (Continued on Page Eight)

Farley ticket will be filed for Ohio vote

By Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Keep your eye on Jim Farley in the turbulent Democratic presidential primary in Ohio.

He's not saying anything about it, but at the last minute (March 14) he's going to file a "Roosevelt slate" of his own.

The regular state Democratic organization has entered a ticket of third-term delegates headed by Chairman Charles Sawyer. Farley's slate nominally will also be for the President, but it will take orders from Jim and not from the White House. In other words, it will be anti-third term.

Farley's Ohio maneuver is one of the most significant political developments in months. It means that he has definitely cast his lot with the anti-third term faction.

Publicly, Jim has ducked all questions on this issue. In entering the Ohio melee with a slate of his own, in direct opposition to a state organization which acted on (Continued on Page Eight)

STEPHEN YOUNG TO RUN FOR POST IN CONGRESS

COLUMBUS, March 11.—Another Democrat eliminated himself today as a potential candidate for the U. S. senate seat of Vic Donahay when Former Congressman Stephen M. Young, Cleveland, filed as a candidate for congressman-at-large.

Young filed 5000 signatures from 65 counties with the secretary of state and declared his faith in the Roosevelt program and the foreign policies of Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

"The future of American youth," said Young "must be on top of American soil, not underneath European dirt. I feel as congressman-at-large, a real opportunity for service will be afforded in tackling the problem of jobless youth."

GEN. JOHNSON IN HOSPITAL

NEW DEAL CHIEF SAYS HE WOULD SUPPORT FARLEY

President, However, Doesn't Expect Convention To Nominate Big Jim

SOME QUESTIONS AIRED

Executive Not Certain That His Postmaster General Qualified For Job

WASHINGTON, March 11.—President Roosevelt told callers last week that he believed Postmaster General James A. Farley lacked the necessary qualifications for the presidency, but that he would support him if the convention nominated him, it was learned today.

The President, however, does not believe Farley will be nominated either for the presidency or the vice-presidency.

Mr. Roosevelt during the week talked quite freely about Farley. The postmaster general's name has been on the capital's tongue since the publication last Monday of an article by Ernest K. Lindley, Roosevelt biographer, quoting the President as saying he opposed the nomination of Farley for the vice-presidency because of his Catholic faith.

Since that publication, the President has stressed to visitors his personal friendship for Farley and spoken gratefully of Farley's great loyalty to him. But he has repeated earlier observations that he does not believe Farley is qualified to be president.

37 NAZIS REACH SAFETY AFTER SCUTTling SHIP

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic, March 11.—Thirty-seven survivors of the 5,537-ton German freighter Hannover, scuttled in Moana Channel when intercepted by French and British warships, were questioned by Dominican police today and then released.

At the German legation, it was said that the Hannover had been intercepted 40 miles off the Dominican coast by a French cruiser believed to be the Jeanne D'Arc and a British destroyer.

The captain and 54 other members of the crew, at first reported lost, are now believed to have been picked up by the French or British warship.

The Hannover's scuttling occurred well within the 300-mile "safety belt" established by the 21 Pan-American nations to protect their neutrality.

TWO ARMED MEN LOOT FINANCE FIRM OF $1,600

CLEVELAND, March 11.—Two armed bandits today held up six employees of the Aetna Finance Co., including three women, and obtained approximately $1,600, most of it in cash.

Employees told police that one of the men wore a dirty, white handkerchief over his face. They were described as between 25 and 30 years old.

The robbers escaped in an automobile, the license number of which was obtained by witnesses.

PISTOL PROVES WINNING HAND IN THIS CARD GAME

WASHINGTON, March 11.—It took this poker player more than an hour to get a winning hand early today, but when he figured out the combination, it netted him $200.

An unidentified, red-headed, and husky young man who had been losing consistently suddenly decided to stop drawing cards, and draw a gun instead.

He did, scooped up all the money in sight, and bowed himself out the nearest window.

The victimized players complained to police, but since they refused to give their names, headquarters would take no action.

Two Army Men Killed As Plane Falls in Fog

DENVER, March 11.—Two army pilots stationed at Lowry Field in Denver were killed in a plane crash in Kansas last night, it was reported today by officials at Lowry Field.

The pilot's names were revealed to be Maj. Devereux M. Meyers, a native Virginian, and Corp. Maurice M. Melvin, of Olivet, Mich.

Capt. Leo Dawson, public relations officer at Lowry Field, said the two men were returning from a training flight to California and had left the airport at Albuquerque at 4 p. m. yesterday. They crashed in a fog near Sharon Springs, Kan.

Capt. Dawson said that Sheriff Orville Walker of Sharon Springs reported the crash to officials at Lowry Field late last night and said the plane burst into flames.

One of the bodies of the men was thrown clear of the wreckage. The plane crashed on the gulley farm of Dolph Simpson, four miles southwest of Sharon Springs.

The last word heard from the army plane, a two-seat attack ship all metal monoplane, was picked up in Trinidad when Maj. Myers radioed: "We're hitting 'soup' and I'm heading East." This communication was heard shortly after the plane left Albuquerque.

Heavy fog blanketed most of southern Colorado last night, and Capt. Dawson said Maj. Meyers apparently sought to evade the fog by flying East. Sheriff Walker told Dawson that sleet and fog blanketed the Sharon Springs district.

The crash was reported to Sheriff Walker by Simpson.

Capt. Dawson said an investigating board at Lowry Field would take off early today for the scene.

TUESDAY VITAL DAY FOR FINNS

Copenhagen Publication Says That Duce And Ribbentrop Are Preparing Pact To Be Submitted To American Emissary

HELSINKI'S ATTITUDE HARDENS

Scandinavian Nation's Leaders Declare That They Will Not Forfeit Their Independence; New Aid Announced

LONDON, March 11.—The Soviet government has set a time limit expiring tomorrow on the peace negotiations now under way with a Finnish delegation, a Reuters (British) dispatch from Stockholm said today. Reuters also reported that Klementi Voroshilov, Soviet war commissar, is participating in the peace talks at Moscow.

COPENHAGEN, March 11.—The newspaper Berlingske Tidene reported in a Budapest dispatch today that Premier Mussolini, Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano and German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop are working on a peace plan in Rome.

The report said the plan will be presented to American Under Secretary of State Sumner Welles when he returns to Rome en route to the United States.

HELSINKI, March 11.—Finnish sentiment against acceptance of Russia's peace proposals hardened today as informed quarters insisted this country would continue to fight rather than give up her independence.

One authoritative source said:

"If Russia makes demands exceeding her previous terms last autumn, there will be no peace."

"Finland cannot give up her independence."

"Six hundred foreign warplanes are now fighting for Finland and this is proof that help can be obtained."

Wallden, Mannerheim There

General Karl Wallden is participating in the Moscow negotiations as representative of Field Marshal Baron Karl Mannerheim, Finnish commander-in-chief.

High quarters in Helsinki maintained utmost reticence regarding progress of the negotiations.

It was rumored, however, that the delegation headed by Premier Risto Ryti, having conferred with Soviet Premier-Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov this morning, is now en route to Helsinki to present the terms to the Finnish parliament.

In this connection Finnish authorities noted with interest an article in the Stockholm paper Folksam Dagblad claiming that the most important angle of the Moscow negotiations concerns an attempt to join Finland into a Russo-German "Lebensraum" (living space) scheme.

Unconfirmed reports stated that the meeting between Molotov and the Finnish negotiators was held in the American embassy in Moscow.

A Finnish spokesman indicated that the outcome of the negotiations may be known by tomorrow and indicated that the result may decide whether peace will be declared between Russia and Finland or whether, possibly, Europe's two wars will merge into a single, general conflict.

"Tuesday will be a critical day for both eastern and western Europe," this source said.

It was understood that the Fin- (Continued on Page Eight)

Reiterating the formula he announced in Paris, Welles said: "I am here solely to report to President Roosevelt on the present situation in Europe. Any views given to me by members of the governments are absolutely confidential and solely for the ear of the President."

"I have no proposals whatever to submit to the British or any other government. There is solely a fact-finding mission."

Welles received the correspondents at the American embassy in the presence of United States Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, with whom he conferred before plunging into formal conferences with British government leaders.

FIRE DESTROYS VALUED HORSES AT LUCASVILLE

Chillicothe, Kingston Men Suffer From Flames At Scioto Fairground

R. L. BLACK LOSES MOST

Sparks From Rails Blamed For Causing Destructive Sunday Disaster

PORTSMOUTH, March 11—Nine show horses owned by Chillicothe and Kingston residents were among the 20 that perished Sunday in a $25,000 fire that destroyed two large barns at the Scioto County Fair Grounds, near Lucasville, 10 miles north of Portsmouth.

R. L. Black, Chillicothe, lost a stallion valued at $1,000 and four other horses. He approximated the value of all the horses that perished at $15,000, averaging $750 each. Black, who is a trainer and caretaker at the fairgrounds and operates a boarding stable and riding academy, suffered hand and face burns when he attempted to release the animals.

Charles McIlvaine and Earl Barnhart, both of Chillicothe, lost two and one horse, respectively. The loss of one horse was sustained by Dr. J. P. Gardner, Kingston.

Rail Sparks Blamed
The barns located close to the Norfolk and Western railroad tracks were said to have caught fire from the sparks of two trains that passed there shortly before the blaze was discovered in the cupola of the building where the horses were quartered.

A Negro stable attendant called Black's attention to the smoke rising from the cupola. Black at the time was giving instructions to several riders. The barn was filled with smoke and flames by the time Black reached it. The doors were closed and the cupola at the top provided a down draft that spread the flames quickly.

Ten horses in the horse barn and several ponies in the cattle barn were released by six men who were attracted to the scene by the flames. Four of the horses that were released returned to the barn and were destroyed.

A shift of the wind and the aid of the Valley Township firemen who came from Lucasville saved a long row of other barns that were threatened by the flames. A horse barn and a cattle barn were reduced to ashes. Harness, saddles, bridles, and feed, stored in the structures, were destroyed.

County Loses $7,500
James Phillips, clerk of the board of county commissioners, estimated the county's loss from the fire at $7,500. The barns were completed in 1937. The horse barn was 60 feet wide and 90 feet long and the cattle barn was 60 by 120 feet. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

ASHVILLE

By S. D. Fridley
Ashville, Phone 79

Sugar camps which used to be in full bloom this season of the year are almost unknown now. Many of these camps were in operation in the sugar and maple tree section of the county and gallons of maple syrup and great quantities of sugar made. There is but one of these of which we are telling in existence in the community, in fact, that of our good citizen, John Sark, operating upon a two-tree basis, the one called "Franklin" carries two spiles and buckets and an extra fine producer of rich flowing stuff, but "Alf," the other one, carries only one spile and bucket with no flow—kinda all dried up.

Might just as well know it now. There is a "move on" and preliminary plans being made to change the dilapidated old council house and jail and fire engine shed into a real municipal building with auditorium and located somewhere in the downtown district. This move is only in keeping with other live villages throughout the state and should have the encouragement and support of our people who are looking forward to a bigger and better Ashville.

Just had to know about it. For the past sometime we've noticed a trailer hooked on behind with three or four bales of greenish appearing something that looked like hay. And yesterday morning the same thing showed up again. So we concluded something must be done about it. A rap or two upon a closed car window brought it open and we were greeted with a smiling and friendly appearing face which to us seemed to say: "Old man, what's wanted?" And then's when "the third" got to going again. We found that those hay bales were the very best alfalfa the Cromley boys over the creek have for sale and they are all for one cow. The party we had "on the rack" has for his boss John Keller's sister and that they lived not far away from John's on 104. And too, that he is a Ford salesman and actually gets 'em sold. Earl and Mrs. Warren, the salesman and his wife.

THEY'RE OFF—on the mile-long Mt. Van Hoevenberg run at Lake Placid, N. Y. with "Bucky" Wells driving. Fifteen breath-taking turns to go. Fifteen chances to taste the supreme thrills of speed. But in smoking it's different. "It's slow burning that makes a cigarette tick with me," "Bucky" says. And he means what he says, because he's smoked slow-burning Camels for ten years.

"ONE-TWO-BOB! ONE-TWO-BOB!" As the crew bobs, "Bucky" picks up speed...60-70-80 miles an hour, driving high on the wall of ice as he swings the quarter-ton steel sled around the curve. But in cigarettes, this daring speedster gives the laurels to slow-burning Camels. You can tell by their mild, mellow taste that Camels burn cooler, slower—and scientists have confirmed this: Camels burned slowest of all in recent tests. (See panel below.)

Smokers who live in communities where certain state cigarette taxes are in effect can save the cost of the tax—and, in some instances, more—through smoking Camels. (See panel at right.) When you are a Camel smoker, you get this unique economy—and all the extra enjoyment of cooler, milder smoking—the fragrance and delicate taste of finer, more costly tobaccos.

In recent laboratory tests, CAMELS burned 25% slower than the average of the 15 other of the largest-selling brands tested—slower than any of them. That means, on the average, a smoking plus equal to

If you want to know how it feels to go 80 miles an hour on a racing hobbled, "Bucky" Wells of Keene Valley, N. Y., can tell you. But when it comes to cigarettes, "Bucky" Wells is on the slow side...the slow-burning side. That means Camels! "I know that Camels burn slower," "Bucky" says. "There's cool comfort in a slow-burning Camel. Mildness—more flavor. Every puff is a fresh treat to the taste, and—get this—there are many more puffs to enjoy in a Camel. Slow burning means extra smoking. I'd walk a mile for a..."

Even if a gust of wind did carry away "Bucky's" last word, not many people would fail to realize it was C-A-M-E-L. Camels are made from costlier tobaccos—drawn from the greatest treasure of mellowed tobaccos ever brought together in one place in the whole world.

SAWYER BEHIND
GEORGE WHITE
FOR GOVERNOR?

Ohio Democrats Puzzled
As Former Executive
Enters Contest

LIMBACH ON BANDWAGON

Possibilities Seen That
Some Of Candidates May
Withdraw Names

COLUMBUS, March 11 — Confused Democratic leaders and followers today faced the problem of backing one of eight candidates for their party's gubernatorial nomination, including two former governors, Martin L. Davey and George White.

Entry of White into the contest yesterday promised to precipitate a bitter factional dispute, in which most of the anti-Daveyites would line up behind White.

Outcome of the expected battle hinged on whether any of the other six candidates would withdraw in an effort to "stop Davey" and urge their adherents to support White.

It was learned on good authority that National Committeeman Charles Sawyer, who defeated Davey for the nomination in 1938, and Democratic State Chairman Arthur L. Limbach would back White. However, neither would commit himself publicly, although the filing deadline is next Friday.

One of Limbach's aides revealed the fact that the state chairman had promised White a majority of the votes in his home county, Tuscarawas. It was known that Limbach and White conferred over the week end.

But whether the other candidates would withdraw for the sake of party "harmony" was problematical. Former Secretary of State William J. Kennedy, of Cleveland, announced several times that he was in the gubernatorial race "for the duration."

Others still in the contest, although they may drop out before Friday, are:

Former Attorney General Herbert J. Duffy, of Columbus; former Congressman-at-Large Harold G. Mosier, Cleveland; former State Highway Director James Marker, Versailles; James Flynn, Sandusky attorney, and Frank Dye, Columbus attorney.

Although Duffy has declared repeatedly he would remain in the race, it was learned that he also had circulated nominating petitions for attorney general and may decide finally to switch to that contest.

Marker was the only one who reportedly was willing to "get together" with other candidates to support one person with enough vote-getting power to defeat Davey.

For several weeks White was undecided as to his own candidacy and had urged a number of candidates to step aside and unite behind one man. When they refused, he announced his own candidacy. He said he had received at least 500 letters urging him to run.

"My motive for getting into the race is to carry out some of the things I was unable to do during my two terms in office because of the economic crisis," White said.

"I am running squarely on my record. Records show that the state income has increased 31 percent since I was governor, and I feel that with the increased money many things can be done and many activities started. In saying that I am not criticizing any of the governors that followed me into office."

White planned to leave soon for a Florida vacation and said he would not make an intensive fight for the nomination. He added:

"If the Democrats think I am the strongest man to face the opposition in November, I will welcome the opportunity to make the fight. If not, I will support the ticket with a smile."

Meanwhile, Mosier announced his platform, in which he pledged himself to increase old age pensions from a maximum of $30 to $40 per month without increasing taxes. He said it could be accomplished through his proposed "economy" administration.

He also said that he would oppose any political party "dominated by a foreign government."

While the gubernatorial contest approached a climax, the battle continued over selection of delegate candidates to the Democratic national convention.

On one side was the party slate, which is to go to the convention pledged to Sawyer as the "favorite son" with the stipulation that

Tonsils And Adenoids
Discussed By Healthier

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is an interesting article on tonsils and adenoids prepared by Dr. A. D. Blackburn, Pickaway County health commissioner.

Tonsils and Adenoids

Diseased tonsils and enlarged adenoids are often the cause of much discomfort and may lead to many very serious complications. Tonsils frequently become infected and hold poisonous germs and pockets of pus which may cause trouble, not only in the throat, but in other parts of the body. Sometimes they become greatly enlarged, but a badly diseased tonsil may not be enlarged at all.

Adenoids are tucked away behind the palate, in the back of the throat, and are therefore out of sight. Normal adenoid tissue is provided by nature and is a kind of moist cushion which helps to filter impurities out of the air after it passes through the nose. Frequently, this adenoid tissue grows abnormally and forms what are known as adenoids. These adenoid growths are so located that they interfere with natural nasal breathing, and the child is forced to breathe through the mouth.

Unless the proper treatment is now undertaken, the condition soon gets worse, and many complications follow. Children with adenoids usually also have diseased or enlarged tonsils. The child is usually pale, often narrow-chested and is not as strong and robust as other children and is subject to frequent colds, sore throat and earache.

But this is not all. There are other more serious complications. Adenoids affect the voice, they cause permanent disfigurement of the facial expression, they interfere with hearing and may lead to loss of sense of smell. An infected ear, mastoid disease, meningitis (brain fever) or brain abscess often follow diseased tonsils and adenoids.

If diseased tonsils and adenoids are allowed to remain untreated, they may, and frequently do, cause serious damage to the child's general health. Rheumatism and heart disease may follow. Constant colds and attacks of tonsillitis keep the child in a weakened condition and cause much loss of time from school.

There is a remarkable and close relationship between the condition of a child's nose and throat and intelligence it manifests. Quite often it is noticed that the child who seems stupid and who fails to do good work in school is made healthy and normal by having the tonsils and adenoids removed.

Treatment—Don't delay in securing medical attention for a child who shows signs of tonsil or adenoid trouble, or who has running ears. Both mouth breathing and repeated attacks of tonsillitis are serious conditions, and it is not fair to the child to allow them to continue. Take the child to the doctor. If he doctor recommends treatment or the removal of the tonsils or adenoids, follow his advice. Even in the case of a very young child, it may be necessary to remove the tonsils. Children they switch their votes to President Roosevelt if he seeks a third term.

On the other was a new group which former Democratic State Chairman Francis Poulsen reportedly was getting together in opposition to Sawyer but pledged to Roosevelt if he wanted them. Reports at first hinted that the second slate would support Postmaster General James A. Farley as the first choice, but to date Farley has indicated he would not run.

The paper backed up its sensational charges with a number of affidavits.

TOMMY THE CORK

Braintruster Tommy Corcoran ran true to form even in his own marriage. He was late as usual.

Always overloaded with engagements, he is rarely on time. It is commonplace with him to fill an appointment an hour or two after the time fixed. His marriage was no exception; in fact, he was tardier than usual. The ceremony took place three weeks after the date originally planned.

Only inner circle intimates know it, but the braintruster and his beautiful secretary, Peggy Dowd, had decided to get married the day after the President left on his Caribbean fishing cruise. But just then the battle broke over the selection of the trustee of the billion-dollar Associated Gas and Electric empire.

Storm center of this bitter row was Ben Cohen, Corcoran's teammate and the ace utility legalist of the inner circle. Cohen viewed the choice of John Hanes, former Under Secretary of the Treasury who was being strongly backed by certain Wall Street interests, as a direct challenge to the Administration and its utility policies.

He opened a militant offensive against Hanes, and Corcoran rushed in to the fray to help his side-kick. And shoulder-to-shoulder with both was Peggy, who readily agreed to postpone her marriage plans until the fight was over.

The battle raged through most of February. Finally, Hanes withdrew and three trustees acceptable to the Administration were appointed. A new date, March 4, was fixed for the marriage. That day, at the hour when Tom, Peggy and their best man, Ben, were supposed to be at the church, the young Dominican priest who was to perform the ceremony was called to the phone.

"Father Joubert, this is Tom Corcoran. I'm in Washington."

"Yes, Tom. What is it. Associated again?"

"No, not this time, Father. We've been delayed by a last minute job, but we're all ready now and we'll be there in an hour and a half. Will that be all right with you?"

It was and so—three weeks and one hour and a half late—Tom Corcoran and Peggy Dowd finally were married.

NOTE—After their engagement last year, Peggy took over managing Corcoran's personal finances, allowed him only $2 a day for pocket money.

AGAINST SPENDING

IF a current Gallup poll is accurate, there is a change in the public attitude toward spending for local purposes. Other things being equal, voters say, they prefer candidates who promise to cut federal funds rather than promising to obtain federal funds for their districts. The ratio of voters for candidates who favor economy rather than spending is almost two to one.

This is a reassuring attitude. Whether it will actually be backed up in practice is another question. Almost any citizen of almost any community, when asked if he favors economy, will say yes, of course. But in recent practice, citizens of most communities have eagerly grasped at federal money for any kind of local improvements. They have mostly done this on the ground that they were getting something for nothing, or that some other community would get the money if they didn't take it. The result, in many places, has been a competition in finding local projects to spend money for.

The economics involved is a matter for much argument. Some projects have been valuable and some haven't. The present point is the mental attitude that so many people and communities have adopted about this sort of thing. Spending needlessly just to keep other communities from getting and spending the money is bad psychology and bad finance. The time has come to weigh impartially the value of all public expenditures, avoiding much wasteful competition.

SAFETY

THERE is no end to the wonders of industrial science. Life is being made tighter and safer. There are pneumatic tubes now for automobiles and trucks that seal themselves when punctured, without letting the air out. Germany has produced gasoline tanks and pipes for airplanes that likewise repair themselves and continue service when perforated by bullets. Thus we shall soon be traveling more safely by land and air.

In a thousand ways this generation becomes more efficient through the use of automatic mechanism. More and more of our operations are watched and controlled by that marvelous device, the "electric eye," with its more-than-human accuracy. In the realm of human nature and political science, however, we're not so good as the instruments we create.

Bigger nations have been trying to destroy Finland for a thousand years, and haven't got it done yet.

Governments and children can be made "good" by paying them for it.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

MAYOR FIORELLO H. LA GUARDIA of New York didn't need to announce, as he did the other day, that he isn't a candidate for a presidential nomination. Scarcely anybody, if anybody at all, thought he was. Oh, his name's been mentioned, but not seriously; not by any practical, competent politician.

Not that he hasn't been a first-class mayor. He generally is agreed that he's been a dandy. He was a fine congressman, too, from the standpoint of folk of a pretty radical tendency. He's a bang-up campaigner. He's a dynamic chap. He's as smart as a whip. He knows the country also. He was born in Arizona. He isn't the kind of New Yorker who never heard of anything west of Manhattan island.

But what party would nominate him? He served in congress as a Republican and as a Socialist. He's been mayor as a Fusionist and an American Labor Partyite. He never officially decorated himself with the Democratic label, but he's a New Dealer—if that makes him a Democrat. An ex-Republican or two (such as Agriculture Secretary Henry A. Wallace) have been suggested as Democratic possibilities, but Wallace's record wouldn't be a circumstance in comparison with Fiorello's variations.

MUCH TOO WEAK

To refer to Mayor La Guardia as a "liberal" is much too weak. "radical" is the word. At least he's a radical in theory. The fact that he served on Capitol Hill as a Socialist speaks for itself.

But Fiorello never make his radicalism ridiculous, as a lot of extreme "leftists" do. The reason undoubtedly is that he has tip-top ability and good taste and a sense of humor. He didn't even say that he isn't a presidential candidate in a way to imply that he BELIEVES he is. He dismissed the notion as a joke.

I'm not so sure that he's a radical as he used to pretend—and maybe used to consider himself. In congress, where his radicalism (consisting of 1) wasn't numerous enough to signify, he preached it "ad lib." He ran for the house of representatives as a Socialist because his district's Republicans, deeming him over-extreme, had eulched him out of a renomination. Whereupon the Socialist said, "All right, WE'LL nominate you." To which Fiorello, with almost incredible nerve, replied, "O. K. Go ahead." And, still more incredibly, he won. He did it, I'll venture to assert, on the strength of his personality; not because he was a Socialist.

As mayor of New York, while still a radical, he's been no second edition of Stalin or Hitler or Mussolini. On the contrary, he's said that Hitler ought to be put in a "chamber of horrors." And it made Adolf so sore that he protested to the state department about it. That was wonderful advertising for Fiorello.

AN IMPOSSIBILITY

All the same, as a presidential possibility, he's an IM-possibility. Imagine an ex-Socialist running for the presidency of the United States!

He'd be a super-interesting candidate, to be sure. And if he ever got into the White House—oh, my! But, "Phooey!"—as Fiorello himself has remarked of all the Republican possibilities who have been mentioned. As a radical, he can't stomach any of THEM.

He likewise recognizes that he's too close to his Italian ancestry (only one degree removed) to figure presidentially in this country. And his first name, Fiorello ("Little Flower"), he has admitted to me, would be a fatal handicap. It isn't so much dwelt on now, but it would be dug up, with devastating results, he once assured me, in the event of a major campaign.

Fiorello was a rip-snorting aviator during the World war. "I never," he told me, while he was a member of congress, "went up in a plane that I wasn't scared to death."

"I guess I ain't much of a hero."

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN.

PITY THE POOR HATERS

WASHINGTON—Most tragic joke played on anyone during the last ten years probably is on the little band of Roosevelt-haters who became British subjects and moved to Nassau to escape the New Deal.

There was no income tax in the British Bahamas, practically no property tax, no SEC restrictions on stock market trading. Americans moving to Nassau merely had to live there six months of the year to escape every penny of New Deal taxation. They could cable their orders to the New York Stock Exchange, blissfully ignore the Securities and Exchange Commission, the Holding Corporation Act and all the regulatory curbs which the New Deal has placed upon big business.

Furthermore, while taking out British citizenship, they could commute—one hour and a half by air—to Miami and Palm Beach, and they could spend their summers in Newport or Saratoga.

But now, almost overnight, war has destroyed their blissful paradise. Now they are subjected to all the wartime hazards and penalties of any British subject.

RE-ELECT ROOSEVELT?

Last week a crowd of these "nouveaux" British crowded around L. W. (Chip) Robert, secretary of the Democratic National Committee, at the Bahamian Club, wailing bitterly.

"What are we going to do?" they cried. "We had saved up enough to last us all our lives, but now the British Government is taking up all our American securities, and giving us depreciated English government bonds in return."

(They referred to the fact that Great Britain, in order to secure cash to pay for war purchases in the United States, is requiring all British subjects to surrender their American stocks and bonds. Naturally, American citizens moving to the Bahamas hold more American securities than the average Britisher, so are hit hardest.)

"Besides," complained another new British subject, "we're likely to be drafted. If this war lasts long enough we'll all be in the British army fighting against Hitler."

"If I could vote back in Connecticut now," moaned another, "I think I would vote for Roosevelt. He's doing his best to stop this war. And if this war continues we're going to be ruined."

"Is Roosevelt going to run for a third term, Chip?" came another question. "If he can stop this war, I hope he gets re-elected."

"But just suppose," wailed the last one, "that Roosevelt stays in the White House for four more years and this war continues just the same!"

NOTE—That evening, Chip Robert, trying his fortunes on the roulette wheels of the Bahamian Club, won $897. "Just New Deal luck," lamented the new British subjects who watched him.

Check Now for Rickets, Spring's Great Disease

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

HAVE YOUR children been examined carefully this spring? It has been a hard winter and they have probably been getting less sun and exercise than usual. Be sure that they haven't any signs of the great spring disease of children, which is rickets.

Rickets is a disease peculiar to childhood. It is caused by lack of vitamin D, which is manufactured in the body by exposure to sunlight. It can usually be prevented or cured by the use of food products containing the vitamin. Vitamin D is fat-soluble and is, therefore, found in oils, particularly fish-liver oils—cod-liver oil, halibut-liver oil, salmon-liver oil, etc. It can also be obtained in an artificially irradiated vegetable oil.

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Children vary, however, in their need for vitamin D. They vary, therefore, in their need for sunlight and for cod-liver oil. Those with dark skin, particularly, need more because the dark skin filters out the sun rays which produce vitamin D. Even if a child has had protective measures during the winter, it is well to think of these variations and to examine all of them under your care, especially for rickets.

Nutritional Disease
Rickets is a nutritional disease which affects, particularly, the bones and the digestive apparatus.

The first symptoms may be slight digestive disturbances, so slight as hardly to be thought worthy of notice. The appetite is finicky; there are little attacks of regurgitation of food and diarrhea; the stools are clay-colored and offensive. The weight, however, may mysteriously remain stationary.

Attacks of sweating, especially sweating around the head, are significant. If the child's pillow is wet in the morning, it means something. The sweating attacks recur during sleep, and sometimes to gain relief the child kicks off the bed clothes and catches cold.

The rickety child is tender. (I am speaking now of the early stages of rickets.) The bones have not grown properly and lifting or changing position may cause a crying spell and a reaction of irritation out of all proportion to the amount of disturbance.

Late Stage Symptoms

Of course, in the later stages, when you have a fully developed case, the diagnosis is easy. The child looks pale, the eyes protrude and the whites are chalky white. The abdomen is distended and the chest shows the series of enlargements at the junction of the ribs and the rib cartilages known as the "rachitic rosary." The spine may show a curvature and the breast-bone sticks outward.

Treatment should be based upon the liberal use of properly standardized cod-liver oil. By "properly standardized" is meant cod-liver oil which meets the standards of the U. S. Pharmacopoeia. There should be exposure to sunshine and fresh air. The child should not be allowed to walk or crawl until it is certain that the bones are strong enough and that deformities will not result. Besides this, plenty of good food of all varieties, fresh in character, should be administered.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendenning has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendenning, in care of this paper. ## THE KILLER SPEAKS

RICHARD HOUGHTON
WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:

I, Bill Strickland, am suspected in the murder of my friend, Alfred Markham, young jeweler, at a party in the riverside clubhouse of the Rio Vista club.

CHAPTER THREE

ST. CLAIR opened the front door, admitting four men, three obviously policemen in plain clothes, and the fourth a young fellow I'd met in the office of The Morning Eagle.

The short and chunky leader of the police trio announced, "I'm Captain Clyde McDonald." The cigar he was chewing rolled from one side of his mouth to the other. "Murder, eh?" His gray eyes swept the members and guests, then snapped back to the club president.

"I'm afraid so," St. Clair said. "The body's in the rear court." He started to usher them across the clubroom.

"Never mind. Has it been disturbed?" "Oh, no. We thought—" St. Clair handed him the key to the glass doors.

"Right. O'Brien and O'Rourke, you look around. Make sure nothing is touched until the coroner comes."

Despite his brusqueness the captain was ill at ease among the formally attired guests. He suddenly remembered to take off his hat, and put it on the piano. "Stabbed?" he asked, turning to St. Clair again. "Alfred Markham, wasn't it? Jeweler?"

St. Clair nodded. "I didn't see the weapon, but it was obvious from the blood. . . . But why fire all these questions at me? You can't think that I . . ."

"As far as I'm concerned," Captain McDonald told him dryly, "everyone is suspected. Coroner Silver may have different ideas. We'll see. My duty is to make sure that no one leaves this place until he's through questioning you."

The reporter pulled out a pad of note paper and mumbled as though to himself: "Item number one. Police encircle quiet."

St. Clair flushed. Headlights flashed across the window as another automobile swung around the drive.

I expected the coroner to be a funeral old person, but the man who came through the door was young, tall and handsome, and faultlessly attired in evening clothes. I disliked him immediately for the way he drew off his driving gloves and greeted us with a smile. "Lovely night," he said.

"Some think so—and some don't," the reporter observed without looking up from the notebook on which he was scribbling.

The coroner was followed by a press photographer, loaded down with camera and armload of flash bulbs.

"Where's the body?" the photographer asked.

Now that they were all here the captain, coroner and news hounds moved through the rear doors and out into the court. One of the officers remained on guard.

It was a lovely summer night—but it was a lovely summer night—Coroner Silver was right about that—but it was too warm. My collar was uncomfortable. I shifted from foot to foot.

The others seemed to be uneasy. Mabel Mercer lighted a cigaret and threw it into the fireplace after one puff. Helen Whalen was putting on lipstick and doing a bad job of it.

"I don't like the attitude of that reporter," St. Clair remarked.

"He acted as though he had a personal peeve against you," Frank observed. "When did you and he ever collide before?"

St. Clair grimaced. "I had him thrown out of the clubhouse one

Unexpectedly the court outside flashed white.

night several months ago. He's a snooper!"

"Newspaper people can come in handy as friends," Jack Berry suggested quietly.

"Good grief!" exclaimed Marge Winch. "Why should you have anyone thrown out? There's nothing to hide—or is there?"

Unexpectedly the court outside flashed white. I saw the silhouette of the cameraman as he took his picture, and the faces of the coroner and captain as they bent over a dark form sprawled by the ily pool.

"My God!" gasped St. Clair. "They won't publish a photograph of the body, will they?"

"They're probably just making a record for court evidence," Jack Berry reassured him, "although, after your treatment of newspaper men I wouldn't be surprised if—"

A horrible fascination gripped me, so that when a second flash came a minute later my eyes were focused directly on the corpse of Alfred Markham.

Muriel, near me, threw her hands up before her face.

"Shouldn't we notify the Markham family?" Jerry asked in a shaky voice. "They ought to know."

Helen shuddered. "I wouldn't want to be the one to break the news."

"How does one go about that sort of thing?" Frank wanted to know. "Isn't it usually left up to the police?"

"Usually the first the family knows about it is when the newspapers telephone and ask for a photograph and a life history."

Jack told us. "It's a brutal procedure, and it's probably already been done."

"Luckily there's no one ill in his family."

"How much of a family is there?"

"Just his brother George and sister Louise," Helen told us. "Most of you don't know Louise. She's a dear. She'll take it hard. George is not a bad sort, but he is quick tempered and unreasonable. He'd have us all arrested if he thought it would do any good."

"D-do you suppose the murderer is in this room?" Mabel asked wildly.

"Nonsense," said Jack Berry. "It was done by an outsider. No one here had the slightest desire to harm Al. But before we jump to any conclusions let's wait and hear what the officers have to say."

Our wait was long, and it seemed longer before the glass doors at last opened and the coroner and captain of detectives re-entered, followed by the reporter and cameraman.

The coroner went immediately to the telephone and jiggled it. "Give me Erentwell 600," he said. "Hello, this is Coroner Silver speaking. Send a hearse to the Rio Vista club." He dropped the receiver back on the hook without waiting for a reply. "And now, captain, I would like to borrow one of your men to take notes while I ask questions."

The captain shrugged. "O'Brien, see what you can do for Mr. Silver." He tossed his chewed cigar into the fireplace, stuck another in his mouth and began to wander meditatively around the room, examining the various articles of furniture as though the coroner's questions were of secondary importance. I had an uncomfortable feeling that his gray eyes were secretly studying us from the rear.

"Names first," Coroner Silver directed. "I'll want the names and addresses of everyone here, what you were doing, what you knew about Alfred Markham. And, O'Brien, be careful you don't misspell anything."

O'Brien grunted. He didn't look too pleased to be taking orders from someone fifteen years his junior.

The coroner looked at me. His eyes were cold, calculating. "I think," he said, "that I'll start with you. Your face is familiar. I should know you."

FINLAND'S CHIEF trouble seems to be that it has the world's largest cheering section but no substitutes on the bench.

March came in like not one lion, but a lot of lines—dotted ones. You'll find them on your income tax and census forms.

Just one month more and all those rookies who were going to be "another Ty Cobb" will be back on the farm once more just another Joe Doakes.

We'd probably believe those war communique writers oftener if they didn't make their rival claims for victory not only the same day but on the same front page!

Today's Garden-Graph

Nudging Nature With Early Peas As soon as the ground can be worked in the Spring, peas can be planted. One does not run any danger in thus nudging Nature a bit in the matter of early peas, for they are a cold weather vegetable and the young seedlings are not injured by late frosts and snow. For the first planting use the quick-growing dwarf varieties.

When planting peas, do not merely broadcast them, for this is a waste of seed. The accompanying Garden-Graph shows the correct and the economical method of planting peas. This method calls for a flat-bottomed trench, six inches wide. On the flat bottom of the trench stagger the peas two to three inches apart. Space the trenches eighteen inches apart.

Early peas should be sown one inch deep in heavy soil and two inches deep in light soil. Firm the soil over the seed. Do not soak the seed of early peas overnight.

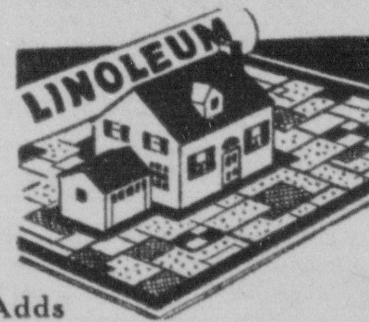

Early peas do not need supports. A little brush placed along the rows will give early peas all the climbing support they need.

The 1933rd session of the Leipzig Trade Fair, at Leipzig, Germany, opens in March, 1940, having operated without interruption through the Thirty Years war, the Napoleonic wars, the World war, and countless political and financial disturbances.

In the plastic houses of the future, say architects and chemical researchers, buildings will admit the warm infra-red sun rays in winter, but deflect them in summer; walls will absorb sunlight by day and give it out as a soft glow in darkness.

In Greece a visitor may buy a ticket, costing less than a dollar, which will enable him to visit most of the national museums, also the Acropolis and the archaeological sites of Athens, Piraeus and Eleusis.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of unforeseen and surprising activity, which may result in conspicuous success if new ideas and bold initiative or novelty are adopted. Subtlety and finesse, especially in dealing with important or secret organizations, are advised. Obstacles and opposition may be successfully combated. Safeguard the health of the household.

A child born in this day may be original, audacious and independent, as well as subtle and given to strategem or intrigue. It may have its times of depression and feelings of frustration, particularly if its emotional life is disturbed.

C. A. C. Tourney In Semi-Finals

The Circleville Athletic Club independent cage tourney is in its semi-final stage following four contests Saturday evening that saw four of the remaining eight teams eliminated. Next Friday evening will bring the four semi-finalists together, the survivors meeting Saturday night for the tournament honor.

Saturday's results were:

Federal Glass, Columbus, 32; Columbus Tramps, 19.

Gosnell Funeral Home, Columbus, 49; Leader A. C., 37.

Chillicothe City Club, 36; Eshelman Feeds, 24.

Newark Gasco, 51; Stone's Grill, Chillicothe, 41

On Friday's card are Federal Glass vs. Gosnell Funeral Home at 8:30 and Chillicothe City Club vs. Newark Gasco at 9:30.

The Federals had little trouble with the Columbus Tramp crew, although the ultimate losers were ahead at halftime, 14-12. All members of the Federal quintet started to hit in the last half, while the Tramps went to pieces, H. Lynch and Nelson, center and guard, going out of the game for foul infractions.

The Gosnell-Leader A. C. tilt was a thriller through almost its entirety, shooting of Richardson and Phillips keeping the Negro lads in the ball game. But Cree, Delashmuth and Maloney started to hit for the Gosnells in the last five minutes to clinch the fray.

Eshelman Feeds, last Circleville survivor, played even with the Chillicothe City Club crew until the last few minutes when the locals tired. Eshelman trailed by only two points as the half ended, 14-12. A shortage of reserve strength cut down the Eshelman team's chances. Ed Reichelderfer going "harm dancing" and Chuck Young being out with a bad ankle.

(The Chillicothe team was cheered on by members of a rival Circleville team that opposed the Eshelmans in the City League which just ended.)

Newark Gasco had too many guns for the Chillicothe Stone's Grill outfit although the Ross Countians held an 18-17 lead at halftime. All members of the Newark club hit the hoop with regularity in the last half, Loar, a forward, leading the parade with four buckets were action. The Gasco team scored 14 field goals in the last half.

STARS SAY—

For Monday, March 11

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for another day of definite success and conspicuous action, which may lead into unusual or surprising grooves. New matters of constructive nature are in order, possibly in co-operation with large corporations, secret societies, political or diplomatic circles. There will be obstacles or postponements, but ingenuity, innovation and tact should win the day.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of unforeseen and surprising activity, which may result in conspicuous success if new ideas and bold initiative or novelty are adopted. Subtlety and finesse, especially in dealing with important or secret organizations, are advised. Obstacles and opposition may be successfully combated. Safeguard the health of the household.

A child born in this day may be original, audacious and independent, as well as subtle and given to strategem or intrigue. It may have its times of depression and feelings of frustration, particularly if its emotional life is disturbed.

JOHNNY WHITERS TAKES ON SIMMS FRIDAY EVE

COLUMBUS, March 11 — The twice postponed heavyweight fight between Johnny Whitters, of Pontiac, Mich., and Eddie Simms, Cleveland, will take place Friday night, it was announced today. Simms' uncertain health was responsible for the delay. He has been suffering from a chest cold and dental trouble.

WALKER IN TRAINING

COLUMBUS, March 11 — Jack "Buddy" Walker, Columbus negro heavyweight and Ohio title holder, tapered off in training today for his Wednesday night fight in Cincinnati against Tom Keneally. Walker will be seeking his 18th consecutive victory.

Pass the Cole Slaw, Grandpa!

COME on up for a fish dinner, brothers and sisters, for we've got plenty. You sure have, mister, and what beauties! Rolfe Bulling of Hastings, Mich., speared these muskellunge through the ice of Thornapple lake near his home on successive days. State conservation officials said it is the greatest catch of muskellunge ever made in two days of fishing on any Michigan lake. The two weigh 77 pounds.

REDS FACE YANK ACES

TAMPA, Fla., March 11—Manager Joe McCarthy of the New York Yankees selected Pitchers Pearson, Hadley and Sundra for mound duty in today's training camp game against the Cincinnati Reds, National League champs. The Yanks beat the Cardinals 8 to 7 with a ninth inning homer by Gordon at St. Petersburg yesterday, evening their series at one-all.

SHE GOT THE JOB

SALT LAKE CITY—Apparently on the theory that she at least has initiative, six Salt Lake City employers offered Miss Dana E. Jones a job after Miss Jones inserted an ad in the newspaper which read: "Incompetent, unoriginal steno needs a job. Cannot be secretary because she never passed the ugly duckling stage." The young lady accepted one of the offers.

ST. LOUIS TEAM GOES AHEAD IN A. B. C. MEET

DETROIT, March 11 — First place in the team event of the American Bowling Congress championship tournament was held today by the Silver Seal Sodas of St. Louis with Milwaukee ruling the singles division on a smashing 682 series by Henry Halfman, 46-year-old veteran of six tournaments.

The St. Louis contingent chalked up games of 867, 943, and 1038 for a 2843, their closing game being the highest of the tourney to date.

Right behind the Missouri team was the Parkway Recreation of Milwaukee with a total of 2801. Milwaukee also nabbed the spotlight in the doubles firing when John Martin and Cy Berg rolled 1196, which included a final game of 452.

32 Cage Teams Ready for State Tourney

COLUMBUS, March 11—High school kids from skyscraper studded cities and wooded hamlets, where two and three room shanties predominate prepared today to rub elbows in the state scholastic basketball tournament.

From Lawrence and Jefferson counties' obscure Kitts Hill and Smithfield—population 62—to the rambling industrial areas surrounding Cincinnati, Akron, Canton and Toledo, 32 squads emerged from district competition eligible for the widely heralded state classic in Columbus beginning Thursday.

Survivors from 1,144 quintets that hit the hazardous tournament trail in November, the 32 schools —16 Class A and 16 Class B—will battle for the crowns vacated by Akron North and North Canton, both eliminated in district play.

This morning, representatives from the following schools were to convene in High School Athletic Commissioner H. R. Townsend's office for drawings into the four brackets in each tourney.

Class A: Defiance, Findlay, Bellevue, Toledo Waite, Akron South, Akron Buchtel, Canton Lehman, Massillon, Canton McKinley, New Philadelphia, Martins Ferry, Marietta, Columbus Central, Cincinnati Woodward, Dayton Fairview and Bellefontaine.

Class B: Rittman, Wayne County; Canfield, Mahoning County;

Waynesburg, Stark County; Midvale, Tuscarawas County; Smithfield, Jefferson County; Marysville, Union County; Amanda, Fairfield County; Glenford, Perry County; Kitts Hill, Lawrence County; New Carlisle, Clark County; Hanover; Germantown, Montgomery County; Sandusky St. Marys; Willshire, Van Wert County; Holgate, Henry County; Bluffton, Allen County.

In Class A, five quintets were in the state meet in 1939. They were Findlay, Akron Buchtel, Massillon, Dayton Fairview and Bellefontaine. In Class B, Rittman, Amanda, Glenford and Sandusky St. Marys, a finalist last year, were set for a second consecutive shot at the title.

Only three squads in the tournament have ever won state titles. Sandusky St. Marys in 1936. Last year, North Canton knocked off Sandusky to snare the B title. Four schools entered the fracas unbeaten during the season. They were Canton McKinley, Cincinnati Woodward and New Philadelphia in Class A and Smithfield in Class B. New Philadelphia and Smithfield were established as early favorites.

The New Philadelphia five, which reached the finals in 1938 but was eliminated in the first round last year, produced this year a well balanced quintet—rugged and geared with power to spare on

AMANDA TAKES DISTRICT TITLE

Fairfield Boys Eliminate Marysville And Marion St. Mary's Last Day

Champion of the Central Ohio District Class B, Amanda's fine high school basketball team looked forward Monday for new fields to conquer and didn't have to look far since the state tournament comes up next week end. The Amanda lads, coached by Trevor Jones, had little trouble turning back Jerry Kingsmore's Marysville varsity in the final event at Westerville Saturday night, 31-25, sterling Wayne Hiatt pacing the Fairfield titlists with seven buckets.

The state tournament will be the second in a row to see Amanda in competition, the Fairfielders entering last year after losing in the district finals.

Marion St. Mary's, victorious over Ashville in a first round game, was eliminated 40-29 by Amanda in the Saturday afternoon semifinal.

Three of the Amanda boys won all-district honors, Ted Clevenger and Hiatt being picked for first team berths and Barney Young receiving honorable mention at center. Marysville, Hebron and Worthington took other first team positions.

George Marshall, 35, Orleans, Indiana, led the parade Sunday afternoon when he was charged with driving at 45 miles per hour on North Court Street. He posted a bond of $10 pending a hearing.

At 6:25 p. m. Milford Jackson, 22, Lovers Lane, was arrested and charged with reckless operation on East Mound Street. Jackson will have his hearing at 7 p. m. Monday unless he forfeits a $20 bond which he posted.

John Wright, 15, son of the Rev. Mr. Wright was driving the car east on 56 and was rammed by the Price car also traveling east when he attempted to turn into the church driveway. Price, who was trying to pass the Wrights, told Sheriff Charles Radcliff that no indication had been given that young Wright was going to make a left turn.

Riding in the car with John were his parents, the Rev. and Mrs. Wright. Price was alone in his car. No injury was sustained by the occupants of either automobile.

RECONCILIATION OF VATICAN AND GERMANY HINTED

Von Ribbentrop To Visit Mussolini, Ciano Before Returning Home

arrived at the Vatican at 10:50 a. m. The four automobiles which carried Von Ribbentrop and his party—contrary to custom—flew neither Vatican nor German pennants.

Von Ribbentrop was greeted by two knights of the Cape and Sword, one of them a German, Herr Hess-Steffen.

Prior to Von Ribbentrop's arrival at San Damaso Square, the honorary palatine guard was withdrawn. A double squad of Swiss guards presented arms in the Clementine Hall at the entrance to the pontifical apartment as Von Ribbentrop entered the Pope's private library at 11 a. m.

Von Ribbentrop was scheduled to confer with both Premier Mussolini and Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano this afternoon and attend an official dinner before departing for Berlin aboard the 9:30 p. m. train.

King Victor Emmanuel received Von Ribbentrop at 9 a. m. for a conference that lasted half an hour.

After his talk with the Pope, Von Ribbentrop conferred for 45 minutes with Cardinal Maglione. Almost immediately thereafter the papal secretary of state visited the German embassy.

While the German statesman conversed with the pope—both speaking German—a crowd of several thousand persons gathered in St. Peter's Square. They cheered Von Ribbentrop as he left the Vatican.

It was learned that Vatican and Italian government officials conferred for an hour on Saturday before Von Ribbentrop's request for a papal audience was granted.

Vatican circles emphasized that the initiative for the audience was entirely German and expressed doubts that concrete results will be forthcoming immediately.

The talk, according to these quarters, was more concerned with general political than religious matters and some Vatican quarters even expressed suspicions regarding Germany's motives in seeking the contact with the Vatican.

Swedes Meet, Too
At the same time, Helsinki officials awaited with interest the results of a meeting of the Swedish parliament's foreign affairs committee called for today. It was anticipated the committee would consider a Swedish security guarantee to Finland in the event of peace or, if the war continues, permission for passage of a large body of allied troops across Swedish territory.

Official announcement of the peace negotiations was made amid suddenly intensified Russian land and air attacks in which several Finnish towns were bombed.

Finnish troops were said to have inflicted heavy casualties on the Russians, particularly on the Carelian Isthmus and it was understood that 1,000 Russians fell.

By a special lucky purchase we are able to offer these fine quality dresses at this low price. They will go on sale tomorrow morning at 8:30 sharp. Be early for best selection. Sizes 14 to 44.

TUESDAY VITAL DAY FOR FINNS

nish government was maintaining contact with the Allies regarding means of increased aid to Finland should the Moscow peace talks fail.

Possibility that they may fall was not entirely ruled out by informed quarters in the Finnish capital.

Delegation Chief Flayed
Apprehension along this line was increased after the Moscow radio broadcast a sharp attack early this morning against the Finnish premier, Risto Ryti, chief of the delegation which Finland sent to Moscow.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Prior to this attack on Ryti, the Rome radio broadcast a report that a tentative basis of agreement had been reached and that the Finns were resigned to loss of the Carelian Isthmus and Petsamo area, but were holding out against Russian demands for the strategic Hangoe Peninsula and the area north of Lake Ladoga.

(Russia, said the broadcast, was concentrating fresh troops for a new attack against the Carelian Isthmus if the peace talks fail.)

Stockholm advices stated without confirmation that Ryti had left Moscow during the night to present the Russian peace terms to his cabinet for acceptance or rejection. These reports indicated that American Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt is playing an important role in the Moscow negotiations.

(The London Daily Express reported from Stockholm that it was believed Steinhardt in a personal interview with Ryti advised the premier that an armistice probably would be the best policy for Finland.)

LIVESTOCK ASSOCIATION LISTS FEBRUARY GAINS

Reporting a 31 percent increase in volume for February over the corresponding period of 1939, Harry Briggs, manager of the Pickaway Livestock Cooperative Association, said that the association handled 3,350 head of livestock representing 1,122,370 pounds.

The 70 carloads had a value of $76,979 and covered the marketing of 540 consignments. Fifty-one carloads were shipped in 1939 at a value of $67,842 on the 2,384 head of livestock.

Money increases cannot be used as a basis for measuring business gains because of price fluctuations, Mr. Briggs said, but volume is the best gauge for business increases.

NEW DEAL CHIEF SAYS HE WOULD SUPPORT FARLEY

President, However, Doesn't Expect Convention To Nominate Big Jim

objection to Farley on the grounds that his postmaster general lacks a record as a liberal. And Mr. Roosevelt has stated publicly and privately that a real liberal must be nominated by the Democrats in 1940.

World Affairs Vital

Secondly, the President told callers that Farley was disqualified by his lack of knowledge and experience in international affairs. Mr. Roosevelt says privately, as he has said publicly, that world affairs will dominate American problems for some years to come.

Thirdly, the President has raised the Catholic question against Farley. He has said he did not like to see a religious issue injected into a political campaign which he believes will be fraught with grave consequences to the nation. He said his opinion was shared by many leading Catholics of the nation.

But, the President has added to callers, if the convention should ignore his opinion and nominate Farley, it will be alright with him. However, he promptly added, he does not expect to see Farley nominated for either post.

At his cabinet dinner last week, Mr. Roosevelt called Farley "my dear friend Jim." And he added this modicum of praise for Farley by saying:

"We've gone through seven years together and Jim has been one of the most loyal friends I've ever known."

Farley Remains Quiet

Farley meanwhile has held his peace. His friends say he was shocked by the Lindley article and more so by Mr. Roosevelt's failure to repudiate it. To one friend, Farley said he did not believe the article was accurate, but to others, he said he had long known Mr. Roosevelt was opposed to his nomination, including the religious reason, and that he was glad the issue had been brought into the open.

Farley has told many friends he is opposed to a third term for Mr. Roosevelt and would speak out against it at the proper time. To some, he has said he will never "break with the chief."

Secret White House instructions, he will not only declare himself but will openly throw down the gauntlet to his "chief."

The outcome of the Ohio fight is certain to have far-reaching effect on Roosevelt's plans. If the Sawyer ticket wins, the third-termers will be greatly strengthened. If Farley scores, it will be a stunning blow to them.
